Introduction

What is Improve your IELTS Listening and Speaking Skills?

Improve your IELTS Listening and Speaking Skills is a complete preparation course for students at score bands 4.5–6.00 preparing for the Listening and Speaking components of the International English Language Testing System. Through targeted practice, it develops skills and language to help you achieve a higher IELTS score in these two components.

How can I use this book?

You can use Improve your IELTS Listening and Speaking Skills as a book for studying on your own or in a class.

If you are studying on your own, Improve Your IELTS Listening and Speaking Skills is designed to guide you step by step through the activities. The book is completely self-contained: a clear and accessible key is provided, so you can easily check your answers as you work through the book. There are two CDs which contain all the recorded material necessary for the Listening skills and Speaking skills sections of each unit.

If you are studying as part of a class, your teacher will direct you on how to use each activity. Some activities, especially in the Topic talk and Speaking skills sections, provide the opportunity for speaking and discussion practice.

How is Improve your IELTS Listening and Speaking Skills organized?

It consists of ten units based around topics which occur commonly in the real test. Each unit consists of:

Topic talk: exercises and activities to introduce vocabulary and ideas useful for the topic.

Listening skills: exercises and activities to develop the skills for questions in the Listening component.

Speaking skills: exercises and activities to develop skills and language for the Speaking component, including practice questions from one part of the module.

Pronunciation focus: exercises and activities to practise key aspects of pronunciation in English.

Exam listening: one complete section of the Listening exam to practise the skills learned.

In addition, there are Techniques boxes throughout the book. These reinforce key points on how to approach Listening and Speaking tasks.

How will Improve your IELTS Listening and Speaking Skills improve my score?

By developing skills

The skills sections of each unit form a detailed syllabus of essential IELTS Listening and Speaking skills. For example, in Listening skills there is coverage of Signpost phrases and Prediction skills. In Speaking skills, there is coverage of Comparing and evaluating as well as Describing advantages and disadvantages. There is also Pronunciation practice at the end of the Speaking skills sections.

By developing language

The Topic talk part of each unit develops vocabulary, phrases and sentence forms for use in the Listening and Speaking components. The Speaking skills section has phrases to help you introduce and organize your spoken answers.

By developing test technique

The Listening skills sections introduce you to the skills you need to tackle the various types of question that can be asked. Knowing the best way to tackle each type of question will enable you to get the best mark you can. The Speaking skills section will make you familiar with the different question types and enable you to relax in the exam and perform at your best.

How is the IELTS Listening component organized?

It consists of four sections: usually there are two monologues and two conversations on a variety of topics. There are ten questions in each section. The topics cover everyday social matters and subjects related to educational or training situations. You hear the recording only once, but you have time to look at the questions first and further time to write your answers.

What kind of questions are there?

There are a variety of question types including multiple-choice, matching, short answer questions, sentence completion, form/table completion, labelling a diagram/plan/map, classification of information, matching information and summary.

How will I be assessed?

You will get one mark for each correct answer up to a maximum of 40 marks. The questions gradually increase in difficulty, but all the marks have the same value.

How is the IELTS Speaking component organized?

You have a one-to-one interview with an examiner lasting between eleven and fourteen minutes. There are three parts. Firstly, the examiner asks questions on everyday topics such as family, hobbies and likes and dislikes. Secondly, you speak for one to two minutes on a topic given by the examiner. Finally, you take part in a discussion on more abstract issues linked to the topic of the talk.

How will I be assessed?

The examiner awards marks under four headings:

Fluency and coherence: speaking in a continuous way, without unnatural hesitation, and organizing your thoughts and speech in a logical way.

Lexical resource: using a range of vocabulary appropriate to the topic.

Grammatical range and accuracy: using a range of grammatical forms, including more complex forms, with a reasonable degree of accuracy.

Pronunciation: speaking so that you can be understood by the examiner.

UNIT AIMS

LISTENING SKILLS
Predicting in tables

SPEAKING SKILLS
Identifying yourself
Discussing familiar topics
Saying where you come from Pronunciation: stressing syllables

a Room available in large, central apartment in return for looking after pets and general duties. Must be reliable, tidy and a non-smoker. Would suit female student.

b Studio available. £700 a month, excluding bills. Twenty minutes by train from London. Single occupant only.

Topic talk

- Look at the advertisements and answer the questions below.
 - Is rented accommodation expensive where you live? Why/Why not?
 - How can students be helped with accommodation when they move away from home?
 - Which accommodation would you apply for, a or b? Why?
- Make a list of types of accommodation that you know.
- Write your own advertisement (15–20 words). This can be based on your own accommodation.
- Complete sentences a–g with the words in the list.

Example

Here in Australia, I live in a large flat in a twenty-storey tower block.

shared house ■ studio ■ farmhouse ■ house ■ flat ■ bungalow ■ penthouse terraced house

- I'd love to live in a _____ on the top floor of a tower block.
- In my home country, I live in the capital in a spacious detached _____.
- I can't afford to live in a large flat so I am renting a small _____.
- My parents live in a remote two-storey _____ on a mountainside.
- As my grandmother can't climb stairs and hates lifts, she lives in a _____ in the suburbs.
- My host family live in a red-brick _____ right in the middle of a long row.
- There are six of us living together in a _____ in a student area of town.

Technique

Add information to statements using with or which. The additional information doesn't need to be long.

Technique

Keep a list of new adjectives by theme with examples if possible.

- 5 Add extra information to four of the sentences in exercise 4 using phrases 1–4 below.
- 1 with spectacular views of the city, especially at night.
 - 2 with lots of open fields around them and plenty of fresh air.
 - 3 which has a kitchen, bedroom and living room all in one. It suits me fine.
 - 4 which can get a bit noisy if all our friends are around.
- 6 Decide which adjective in a–g below is the opposite of the other two.
- a boring dull fascinating
 - b cramped spacious sizeable
 - c traditional modern old-fashioned
 - d bustling quiet peaceful
 - e cosy uncomfortable inviting
 - f smart elegant shabby
 - g vibrant boring lively
- 7 Which type of accommodation do you live in? Make a list of adjectives to describe where you live.
- 8 The questions below come from an IELTS Speaking test. Match the examiner's questions with the candidate's answers.
- 1 Where do your host family live?
 - 2 How close to the city is it?
 - 3 Is your accommodation modern or old-fashioned?
 - 4 Can you tell me what the area you live in is like?
 - 5 What is your family home like?
- a The neighbourhood where I live is very peaceful.
 - b My parents' apartment is in a very dynamic part of the city.
 - c The family I'm staying with live in a very chic part of town.
 - d The house is very high tech.
 - e It is in a very good location.
- 9 Develop the sentences a–e in exercise 8 by adding one of the following sentences.
- 1 because it is well connected to the city centre by train and bus.
 - 2 so it is always noisy and full of people.
 - 3 with plasma screens, remote controls for the lighting and wireless computers.
 - 4 The area is residential with tree-lined streets, no shops and not many cars.
 - 5 At all times of the day it is really tranquil. I have to say I love it there.
- 10 Which items in exercise 9 give these extra types of information?
- Reason _____
- Consequence _____
- 11 Ask and answer the questions in exercise 8.

Listening skills Predicting in tables

1 Choose the best title a–c for each table 1–3.

- a Climate change over 50 years
- b Transport use by type
- c Comparison of housing by area

2 Complete each table with the information below.

District	Typical style	Average price	Transport
Aberton	bungalows	£180,000	1 _____
Hunborough	2 _____	£225,000	poor
Millview	flats	3 _____	excellent

	1955	2013
Average temperature	17.4°C	4 _____
Annual rainfall	5 _____	652 mm

	Bus	Train	Bicycle
Price of fare	£1.50	7 _____	N/A
Total journeys	6 _____	2504	962
Male passengers	34%	62%	8 _____
Female passengers	66%	38%	9 _____

£125,000 ■ £4.50 ■ 18.2°C ■ 25% ■ 3567 ■ 612 mm ■ 75%
good ■ terraced houses

3 Look at the numbering in the tables. Which tables are read from top to bottom? Which are read from left to right?

Technique

Familiarize yourself with charts and tables. Find them in newspapers and magazines and online, e.g. at www.ons.gov.uk. Learn to read and understand them.

4 The table below is taken from a table completion task. Read the table contents then answer questions a–d.

	Price now	Main advantage	Second advantage	Length of guarantee	Main disadvantage
Analogue radio	Example: £29.99	Cheap	Excellent 3 _____ with expensive systems	4 _____	Service will finish soon
Digital radio	1 £ _____	2 Lots of _____	Little or no interference	2 years	5 _____ is short

- a What is the topic of the table?
- b How many products are discussed?
- c How many aspects of each product are considered?
- d Which answers may be numbers?

5 The instructions for the table completion task in exercise 4 are: 'Write NO MORE THAN TWO WORDS AND/OR A NUMBER for each answer.' Which of the following answers must be wrong, and why?

- a very high quality
- b 210
- c £35 or £55
- d 3 or 4 years

6  1.1 Listen to the recording, follow the instructions as given in exercise 5 and complete the gaps in the table in exercise 4.

7 The table below is also taken from a table completion task. Read through the table carefully and answer these questions.

- a In which order will you hear the information?
- b Which answers can you predict?

Technique

Pay special attention to the rubric, the headings and the numbering in table completion tasks. Use this information to predict the type of information which is missing.

	old ValueCard	new SuperValue Card
Points	Standard number	Double points
Free credit period	One month	6 _____ months
Interest rate	18.5%	7 _____ %
Cardholder shopping evenings	8 _____ per month	Two per month
Benefits	Free delivery within 9 _____ miles	Free delivery within 50 miles
Fee	Nil	10 £ _____

8  1.2 Listen to the recording and complete the gaps in the table. Write NO MORE THAN ONE WORD AND/OR A NUMBER for each answer.

Speaking skills Identifying yourself

Technique

Speak slowly and clearly. In the opening exchange, sound interested in order to make a good first impression.

- 1  1.3 Listen to four questions from the start of the IELTS Speaking test. Write the exact questions the examiner asks.

- a Can you _____ ?
b And what _____ ?
c Where _____ ?
d Could you _____ ?

- 2 Read this information about a candidate for the Speaking test. Use the information to complete the dialogue with the examiner.

Benjamin Weiss is going to take the Speaking module at 3.30 this afternoon. He comes from Switzerland and prefers people to call him Ben. He has brought his passport as identification.

- Candidate: Hello, good _____ .
Examiner: Good _____ . Can you _____ me your _____ name, please?
Candidate: My name is _____ .
Examiner: And what can I _____ you?
Candidate: Please _____ me _____ .
Examiner: Good. Where _____ you come _____ ?
Candidate: I come _____ .
Examiner: Can you _____ me your identification, please?
Candidate: Of course. _____ is my _____ .

- 3 With a partner, practise reading the dialogue above. Then practise again giving answers as yourself.

Discussing familiar topics

- 1 The following questions are taken from an interview in a daily newspaper with a famous singer. Match the questions 1–8 with her answers a–h.

- 1 What kind of town did you grow up in?
- 2 Where would you like to live?
- 3 Do you have any hobbies?
- 4 What sort of TV programmes do you like watching?
- 5 What is your greatest fear?
- 6 Which living person do you most admire?
- 7 What is your most precious object?
- 8 What sort of place do you live in now?

- a I've got this beautiful ring that belonged to my grandmother. It has sentimental value for me. It's very special.
- b Spiders.
- c In New York, of course.
- d I'm quite keen on comedies. I don't particularly like news and current affairs. They make me feel sad.
- e Hotels mostly.
- f I grew up in quite a small town. It was quiet and nice, and everyone seemed to know everyone else.
- g I like playing jazz piano. I like it because it relaxes me.
- h My dad. He has taught me such a lot about how to live my life well, and I'm grateful for that.

2 Look again at the questions and answers in exercise 1. Answer the questions below.

- a Are the questions complex and abstract or do they relate to personal information?
- b Which answers would be good in the Speaking test? Why?

3 Make 10 typical questions that examiners ask in Part 1 of the Speaking module. Use the words given to make the full questions, add in extra words such as articles where necessary. The first one has been done for you.

- a How often / you / listen / music?

How often do you listen to music?

- b Where / was / last / place / you / travelled / to?

- c What form / transport / you / use most?

- d When / you / start / learning English?

- e Which form / communication / you / like / use / most – / email / phone?

- f What sports / you / played?

- g What kind / food / like / eat?

- h What hobbies / you / have?

- i What sort / television programmes / you / enjoy / watching?

- j What type / books / you / enjoy / reading?

Technique

Prepare for Speaking Part 1 by thinking about the kinds of topic the examiner may ask you about. Prepare also by thinking of extra details to support your answers.

4 With a partner, ask and answer the questions you wrote in exercise 3. Give extra information to elaborate your answers.

Saying where you come from

- 1  1.4 In Speaking Part 1, you will often be asked about your home town or where you live now. Listen to an extract from an interview. Complete the examiner's questions in the spaces below.

Now in this first part I'd like to ask you some questions about yourself. Let's talk about your town or village.

- Question 1: Could you tell me ?
 Question 2: What ?
 Question 3: Is there anything ?
 Question 4: And what kind ?

- 2  1.4 Listen again. Make notes on the details that the student mentions in response to each question.

- Question 1 _____
 Question 2 _____
 Question 3 _____
 Question 4 _____

How much detail does the student give in each answer?

- 3 Make a note of your own personal answers in response to the questions in exercise 1.
4 With a partner, ask and answer the questions in exercise 1. Try to add extra information to your answers. Use the phrases in the list below to help you.

- I used to live in ... but now I ...
- I moved here ...
- It's a ... place with ...
- What I like about it is ... because ...
- The great thing about ... is ...
- I suppose most people ...

Technique
 Always support your answer by adding extra information. Use for example and because.

Pronunciation: stressing syllables

- 1 How many syllables are there in each of these words for describing places?

pleasant ■ dynamic ■ flat ■ peaceful ■ cramped ■ bungalow ■ detached ■ overpriced

- 2  1.5 Listen to the words and match each word with a stress pattern below.

Example
 pleasant pattern 2

Pattern 1 O Pattern 2 Oo Pattern 3 oO Pattern 4 Ooo Pattern 5 oOo Pattern 6 ooO

- 3 Identify which word has a different stress pattern from the rest of the words.

- | | | | |
|-----------------------|-------------|--------------|--------------|
| a discuss | also | although | reply |
| b interest | hotel | prefer | technique |
| c quality | radio | comedy | solution |
| d example | experience | advantage | afternoon |
| e technology | variety | information | environment |
| f interference | explanation | analysis | sentimental |
| g unacceptable | theoretical | unobtainable | communicable |

LISTENING SKILLS

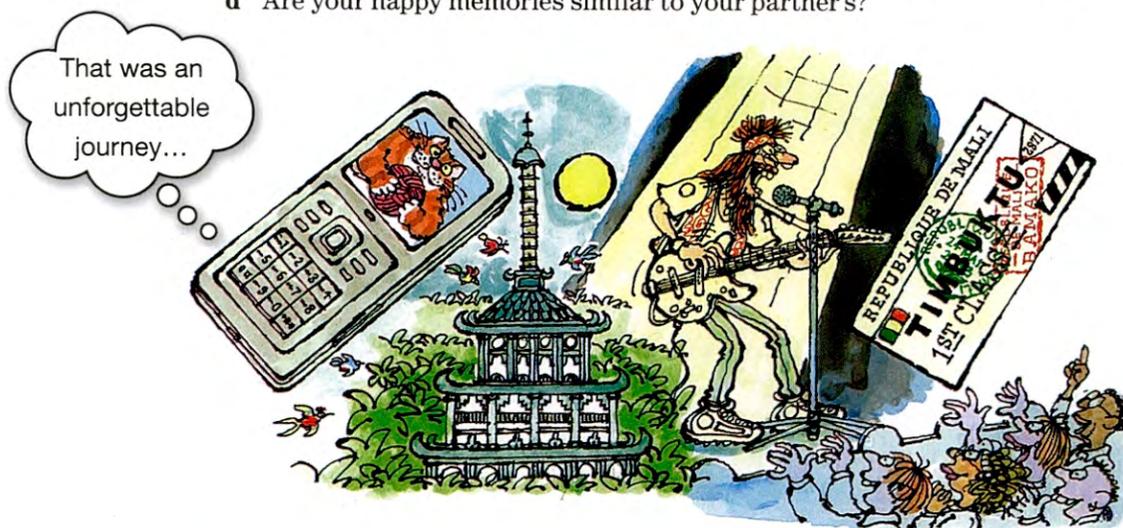

Understanding signpost phrases
 Answering sentence completion questions
 Answering matching questions

SPEAKING SKILLS

Describing a past event
 Informal speech: using signpost phrases
 Planning your talk in Part 2
 Describing precautions
 Pronunciation: linking in connected speech

Topic talk

- 1 Look at the pictures with a partner and answer the questions which follow.
- What do you think each item reminds the speaker of?
 - Does the train ticket trigger happy or sad memories? How do you know?
 - Is there anything which triggers happy memories for you? If so, what?
 - Are your happy memories similar to your partner's?

- 2 In the phrases below, decide which two adjectives are connected with positive memory.

Example

good unforgettable ceremonial moment

- suitable marvellous great time
- happy tragic remarkable event
- great momentous formal occasion
- fleeting memorable favourable moment
- exhilarating rewarding past experience
- exciting big foreign adventure
- outstanding minor impressive achievement
- former golden happy days
- fantastic business great trip

Technique

Keep a list of adjectives to describe events from your personal history in the IELTS Speaking Part 2.

3 Which words from the lists in exercise 2 combine with the words below?

Complete the lists. The first one has been done for you.

very ...

4 Match each event a–e with the noun which best describes it.

an achievement

a special occasion

an adventure

an experience

an event

a studying abroad

b doing well in exams

c a musical concert

d your brother's wedding

e getting lost

5 For each noun in the list, think of at least one personal experience.

Example

an achievement: I won a school sports prize.

6 With a partner, ask and answer questions about the events you noted in exercise 5. Use these prompts to help you.

Tell me about ...

What kind of ...?

What happened ...?

7 Use nouns to summarize descriptions. Match each event a–h with the descriptions below.

Example

I had a party for my twenty-first birthday. It was a happy event.

a I volunteered to help other young people.

b I received first prize for a painting I did in secondary school.

c I want to describe something strange which actually happened in my home town.

d The journey by coach and train around South America brings back lots of good memories.

e I attended the inaugural speech of the President.

f I got lost with some friends in the Australian desert.

g I parachuted from a plane to celebrate passing my exams.

h I saw the hardship of other people when I was volunteering.

exhilarating experience unforgettable moment formal occasion

rewarding experience

nerve-racking adventure bizarre incident

humbling experience

memorable trip

8 Make three statements of your own about experiences, events or occasions. Work in pairs and explain your statements to your partner.

Technique

Use nouns like those in exercise 4 to help trigger ideas in the IELTS Speaking Part 2. Make a list on cards of events, people, places and possessions/items that you are familiar with. Think of how to describe them and give reasons for liking, disliking and remembering them. You might also be asked about events and experiences that were new or exciting.

Listening skills Understanding signpost phrases

- 1 The sentences below come from a lecture on history. Decide the function of the phrases in italics in sentences a–i and add them to the list. Note that some sentences may be used more than once.

Starting: e _____

Listing: _____

Adding: _____

Digressing: _____

Returning to the subject: _____

Concluding: _____

- a In addition, we can ask if the study of history has any practical use.
- b Anyway, there is a wide range of topics for you to choose from.
- c Finally, I wish you good luck.
- d By the way, there is a series of lectures on this topic starting on Tuesday.
- e I'd like to begin this term's lectures with a few general questions.
- f Secondly, what is history?
- g To sum up, as I said, you are fortunate.
- h Firstly, why study history?
- i Again, we can look at the different kinds of history there are to study.

- 2 The sentences below are part of another lecture on a similar topic. Put them in the correct order.

- a By the way, there's a lecture on citizenship in the Social Sciences building on Wednesday.
- b I'd like to begin by giving three reasons for studying history.
- c Finally, we can do better in our jobs if we know a little history.
- d Secondly, it helps us to be better citizens: we can participate better in our society if we understand its history.
- e Firstly, it helps us to understand the world we live in, especially its politics and economics.
- f To sum up, history can be a huge help in many aspects of our lives.
- g Anyway, our participation in society is more meaningful if we understand a bit more.

Technique

Pay attention to linking phrases used in talks and lectures to follow the flow and structure of the recording in Listening Section 4.

Answering sentence completion questions

- 1 Statements a–f give some facts about sentence completion tasks. Decide whether the statements are true or false.

- a You must always put words in the gaps.
- b The instructions tell you how many words you need.
- c Sometimes you can put a number in the gap.
- d The missing information is usually at the start of the sentence.
- e Gaps are located at the middle or end of the sentence.
- f It is possible to guess what type of information is missing.

- 2 The instructions and sentences below are taken from a sentence completion task. Read them carefully and check your answers to exercise 1.

Complete the sentences below. Write ONE WORD OR A NUMBER for each answer.

The handout covers 1 general topics.

As well as students of history, there are students of 2 at the lecture.

The lecturer's own motivation for studying history is that she finds it 3

- 3  1.8 Listen to the first part of the recording and answer the questions in exercise 2.

Answering matching questions

- 1 The inventions in the list come from different periods in history. Decide which period A–C they belong to.

- | | |
|--------------------------|--------------------|
| A the eighteenth century | 1 the telephone |
| B the nineteenth century | 2 the automobile |
| C the twentieth century | 3 the steam engine |
| | 4 the aeroplane |
| | 5 the typewriter |
| | 6 the wristwatch |

- 2 The questions below are taken from a matching task. Can you predict any of the answers?

How does the lecturer describe each kind of history?

T a traditional type of history

M a modern type of history

F a type of history which looks to the future

Write the correct letter T, M or F next to questions 4–10.

- | | |
|-----------------------------|--------------------------|
| 4 political history | 8 economic history |
| 5 post-modern history | 9 military history |
| 6 feminist history | 10 ethnic history |
| 7 social history | |

- 3 In the recording you may not hear the exact words traditional, modern, which looks to the future. Put the following synonyms in the best place in the table. One has been done for you.

progressive ■ present-day ■ old-fashioned ■ orthodox ■ visionary ■ contemporary classical ■ up-to-date ■ forward-looking ■ new ■ current ■ conventional

Words in the question	Possible words in the recording traditional modern looks to the future	visionary

Technique

Read the question carefully in matching tasks. If the categories are related, decide what kinds of words and phrases you would expect to hear. Listen for similar information in the recording.

- 4  1.9 Listen to the second part of the recording and answer the questions in exercise 2.

Speaking skills Describing a past event

- 1 Read these two advertisements and answer questions a–d.
- Where would you see advertisements like these?
 - Do you think the owner will find her purse? What about the owner of the wallet?
 - What do you think about the reward? Is it large enough, or too large?
 - What would you do if you lost a wallet or a purse?

- 2 Read the list of personal objects below. Put the objects in order according to how inconvenient it would be to lose each one (1 = most inconvenient; 10 = least inconvenient).

house keys ■ folding umbrella ■ theatre tickets ■ £100 in cash ■ diary ■ student card ■ £5 in cash hotel room key ■ mobile phone ■ credit card

- 3  1.10 Listen to a man telling a story about an object he lost. What did he lose? How important was it?

Informal speech: using signpost phrases

- 1  1.10 Listen again and match each phrase a–d from the story with the correct function 1–4.

- I should say
 - How shall I put it?
 - Now, where was I?
 - Let me see,
- returning to the subject
 - gaining thinking time
 - emphasizing a point
 - searching for a word

Technique

Use these phrases when necessary. They are discourse markers. They are correct English in informal and semi-formal speech, e.g. in the IELTS Speaking module. Then, make sure you continue to speak fluently.

Planning your talk in Part 2

1 The task card below is taken from Speaking Part 2. Read the card and answer questions a–c below.

Describe an important possession that you lost.

You should say what the possession you lost was where you lost the possession what efforts you made to find it and explain why the possession was important to you.

- What is the main topic?
- How many separate instructions are there?
- How many instructions relate to the future? How many relate to the past?

2 The notes below were made by a student who was preparing to give a talk on the topic in the card above. Which instructions on the card does each note relate to?

1 → shop	5 cards
2 → police	6 → newspaper
3 bag - shoulder strap	7 ? shop
4 handbag

Technique

Plan your talk by writing down a list of key words (around ten) and talk around them. You have only one minute to think and make notes.

3 Imagine you are the student who wrote the notes in exercise 2. Practise giving a short talk using the notes. Use some of the phrases below to help you.

Well, I should say first that

To find it, I first

After that, I

Finally, I

Looking back, I realize that

In future I will/won't

4 Take one minute to think and make notes about your own talk on this topic, using your own experience. Then practise speaking for two minutes using your notes.

Technique

Finish your talk by looking to the future and talking about how you may want to do things differently. This gives you more to talk about. Sometimes you can talk about the precautions you may take.

Describing precautions

1 Read the example sentence below. Underline the phrase which indicates that it is a precaution.

Example

In future, I will put labels on my suitcases in case they get lost on the plane.

2 Match each precaution a–f below with a situation 1–6 that it might prevent. Rewrite the sentences using the structure in exercise 1.

- | | |
|--|---|
| a Keep some keys in a flowerpot in the front garden. | 1 You lose your house keys. |
| b Keep a paper map in the car. | 2 You lose your passport. |
| c Note the phone number of your embassy. | 3 Your GPS gives you wrong information. |
| d Put a second umbrella in the car. | 4 You lose your credit card. |
| e Bring a packet of sweets. | 5 Your ears start to pop in the plane. |
| f Write down the phone number of your bank. | 6 You leave yours at home. |

- 3 The task card below is taken from Speaking Part 2. Take a minute to think and make notes. Then practise speaking for two minutes.

Describe a time when you were late for an event.

You should say

- what kind of event you were late for
- what caused you to arrive late
- what happened to you when you arrived and explain what you have learned from the experience.

Technique

Speak for 1½–2 minutes in Part 2 of the Speaking module.

Pronunciation: linking in connected speech

- 1 a  1.11 Listen to these pairs of words. In some pairs you can hear the sound /r/. In some, you cannot. If you can hear the sound, link the words like this 'four~apples'.

car engine ■ car mechanic ■ rare opportunity ■ rare stamp ■ amateur actor ■ amateur dramatics summer activity ■ summer clothes ■ for ever ■ for now ■ fire escape ■ fire alarm

- b Say the phrases yourself, putting in the links where needed.

- 2 a  1.12 Listen to these phrases. In each phrase there is a link. In another part of the phrase, a sound is dropped. Mark in the link and cross out the dropped sound.

bigger and better ■ more and more ■ quicker and quicker ■ wider and longer

- b Say the phrases, putting in the links and dropping the sounds.

- 3 a  1.13 Listen to these phrases. The phrases all have links. Write /w/ (as in wet) or /j/ (as in yet) to show the link.

Examples zoo entry → zoo (w) entry coffee evening → coffee (j) evening nearly always ■ key ingredient ■ new idea ■ every opportunity ■ too easy ■ very often

- b Say the phrases yourself, putting in the links.

- 4 a  1.14 Listen to these phrases. Mark the links in the phrases by inserting /dʒ/ (as in judge) or /tʃ/ (as in church).

Examples can't you → can't /tʃ/ you could you → could /dʒ/ you not yet ■ told you so ■ not usually ■ not yours ■ mind you ■ heard you the first time

- b Say the phrases yourself, putting in the links.

- 5  1.15 Listen to a candidate answering a Part 2 task about an embarrassing occasion. Mark where the links in these sentences should go.

This happened about a year ago (r). I had chosen a pullover in a shop (r). I joined the queue at the cash desk (w). 'Could you put the card in the machine, please?' the shop assistant said (dʒ).

I looked for my card but I couldn't find it. 'I know I had it yesterday,' I thought (tʃ). My face became redder and redder (r). I said, 'I'm sorry about this. I'll leave the pullover here (j).' I rushed out of the store, very embarrassed (j).

- 6 Say the sentences in exercise 5, putting in the links.

Technique

Make links between the words as you speak. This helps your English sound natural. It also gets you a better grade for fluency in connected speech.

 glass ■ plastic ■ tin ■ leather ■ steel

- 5 Name a common object which you would use the words below to describe.

Example

spherical: football

spherical ■ rectangular ■ square ■ circular ■ oval ■ spiral

- 6 In the IELTS Speaking Part 2, you may have to describe an object that you like, such as a camera or a tablet. Describe an object that you have bought in your own words, without saying its name. Ask another student to guess what the object is.

Technique

Create a list of objects that you like and dislike and a few ways to describe them physically.

7 In Listening Section 1, you may hear a conversation between a customer and a shop assistant. Match the complaints about the objects in 1–8 with the product details a–h.

- 1 I bought this software CD and it won't work.
 - 2 There is something wrong with the frame of my sunglasses.
 - 3 I can't get the TV to work properly.
 - 4 I'm ringing to complain about the vase you sent.

very ■ badly ■ severely ■ completely ■ slightly

- a You sent me this/these _____ and I was really annoyed to find that ... b When I opened the _____ you sent, I found the ...

Listening skills Understanding information in flow charts

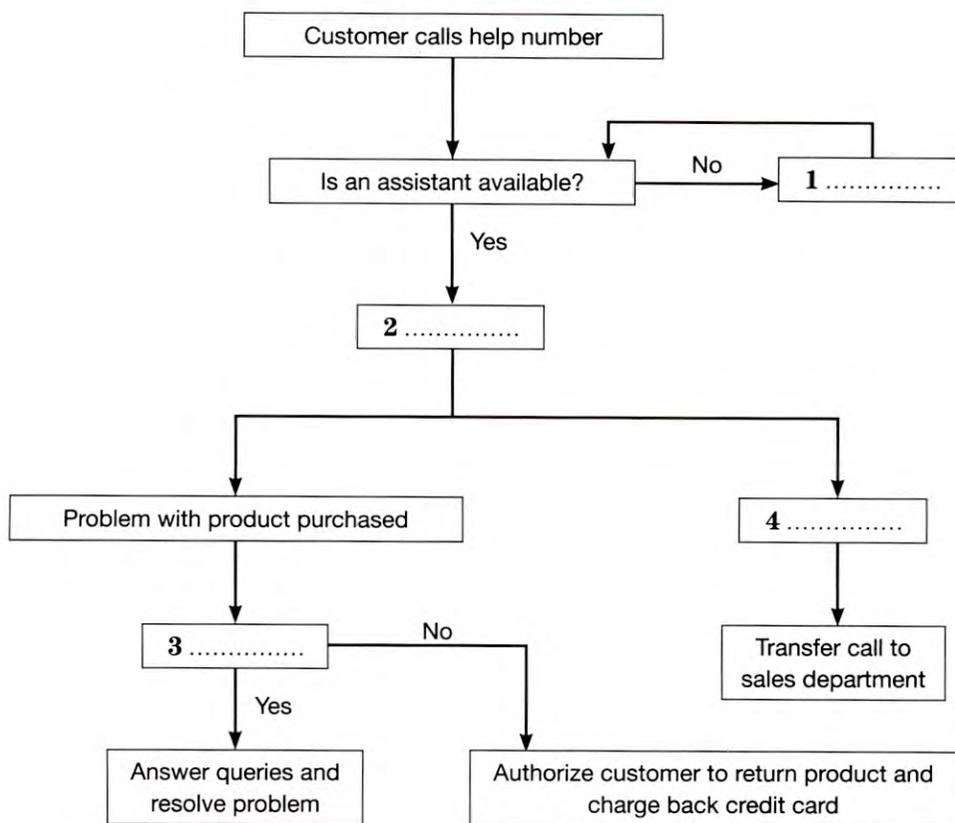

1 The flow chart below is used by a mail order company. It shows how staff should deal with customer queries. Put a–d in the correct spaces on the flow chart.

- a Ask purpose of customer's call
- b Request to place order
- c Put customer on hold
- d Can query be dealt with over telephone?

Technique

Practise reading and understanding flow charts. They can appear in the Listening and Reading Modules.

DEALING WITH TELEPHONE QUERIES

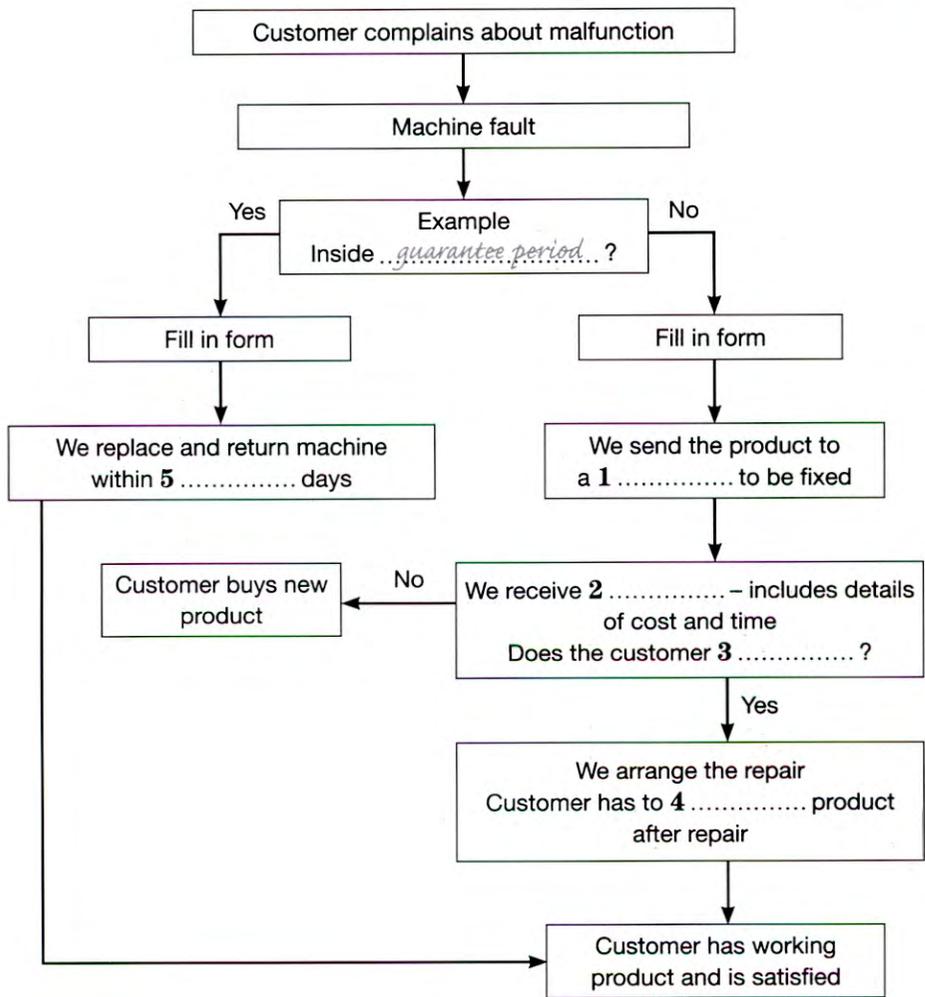

2 A flow chart in an IELTS Listening task shows that information is related in particular ways. Label each phrase in the box below with the relationship it indicates. Choose from: cause and effect, conditional or linear ordering.

As a result ■ This means that ■ If ... , then ■ Firstly ■ Otherwise ■ Next ■ Unless ... , then
 This leads to ■ Finally ■ If not, then ■ To begin with 3 Imagine that a training manager is describing the procedure above for dealing with customer queries. Which phrases from exercise 2 would you expect to hear? Write the phrases on the flow chart near the relevant boxes.

4 The information opposite is taken from a flow chart task. Answer questions a–d.

- a What is the starting point and end point of the process?
- b What is the general topic?
- c Which nouns appear many times in the chart?
- d Which words from exercise 2 above do you expect to hear and where?

Technique
Read the flow chart quickly and carefully. It gives you information about what you will hear in the Listening task.

- 5 1.18 Listen to the first part of the recording and complete the gaps in the flow chart. Write NO MORE THAN TWO WORDS OR A NUMBER for each answer.
- 6 1.19 The form below is taken from a form completion task. It follows on from the flow chart in exercise 5. Listen to the recording and complete the form. Write ONE WORD OR A NUMBER for each answer.

Speaking skills Answering part 3 discussion questions

1 There are many influences on the way people shop. Number each factor below 1–8 according to how much you think it influences what you buy (1 = most important; 8 = least important).

advertising ■ convenience ■ fashion ■ luxury necessity ■ quality ■ shop service ■ value for money

2 For each of the factors you rated 1, 2 and 3 above, think of a purchase you made where that factor influenced you. Tell another student about this experience.

3 Statements a–h below relate to the topic of shopping. Decide which of the statements you agree and disagree with.

- a Shopping habits have been changed by globalization.
- b Shopping can be a form of relaxation.
- c The Internet will eventually mean the end of shopping as we know it.
- d People worldwide are becoming more materialistic.
- e Shopping today is a less personal process than shopping in the past.
- f The purpose of advertising is to inform people about what is available.
- g Discarded packaging is causing serious environmental problems.
- h Shopping in local markets is preferable to shopping in big stores.

4 Speaking Part 3 discussion questions are often formed in predictable ways. Match the beginning of questions 1–8 to their endings a–h.

Example

If In what ways have shopping habits been changed by globalization?

1	In what ways have	a	of advertising?
2	To what extent is shopping a form of	b	becoming more materialistic?
3	To what degree will the Internet	c	a less personal activity than shopping in the past?
4	To what extent are people worldwide	d	relaxation?
5	In what ways is shopping today	e	mean the end of shopping as we know it?
6	What is the purpose	f	shopping habits been changed by globalization?
7	In what ways does	g	in local markets or shopping in big stores?
8	Which do you prefer, shopping	h	discarded packaging cause environmental problems?

Technique

Answer Part 3 questions by expressing opinions, justifying opinions, describing, comparing and analysing. Part 3 is about abstract issues.

- 5  1.20 Listen to three people answering questions on the topics in exercise 4. Identify which topic they are discussing and write the question they are answering in the spaces below.

Speaker 1: _____

Speaker 2: _____

Speaker 3: _____

- 6 Give your own answer to one of the questions in exercise 4.

Introducing opinions

- 1  1.20 Listen again. For each speaker, make a note of the phrases they use to introduce their opinions.

Speaker 1: _____

Speaker 2: _____

Speaker 3: _____

- 2 With a partner, ask and answer the questions you wrote in exercise 4 in the previous section. Use the phrases below to introduce your own opinions.

Phrase bank

In my view/opinion,
Well, from my point of view,
To my mind,
It seems to me that Personally, I think
My impression is that
I suppose

Technique

Use phrases like these in Part 3. They show that you are able to communicate your own ideas effectively. Try not to repeat a phrase: use a range of phrases.

- 3 Read the three short texts about fashion. To what extent do you agree with the ideas expressed?

The fashion cycle

As everyone knows, what's in fashion today was probably in fashion twenty years ago. However, cheap imported clothes have meant that the fashion cycle is getting shorter and shorter. In the past, people looked after their clothes and repaired them when necessary. Today, people change the clothes and outfits they wear more regularly, and the media and advertisers encourage them to do this.

You are what you wear

A generation ago, what teenagers wore to school was not a matter of choice. They had to wear a uniform. To some extent, the same was true of adults who wore serious business suits in the office. Nowadays, things are rather different: schoolchildren can customize their uniform; adults have dress-down days. More often we choose exactly what we wear, and with this has come more anxiety about looking good and creating the right impression.

Keeping up with the Joneses

When people talk about fashion, they often have clothes in mind, but, in a way, fashion affects all aspects of our lives. People spend money on redecorating their houses, on eating organic food or on the latest four-wheel-drive car because they perceive these things to be fashionable, not because they need them. That's not a criticism, it's just human nature.

- 4 Match each text with one of the Speaking Part 3 questions a–c below.
- In what ways does fashion affect different aspects of our lives?
 - What makes people follow fashion?
 - To what extent does how we dress indicate who we are?
- 5 With another student, ask and answer the questions in exercise 4. Give your own views.

Pronunciation: using opinion phrases

- 1 Read these opinions about advertising. Underline the main stress in the phrases in italics.
- In my view*, there is too much advertising on television.
 - To my mind*, advertising is fun.
 - It seems to me* that advertising does more harm than good.
 - My impression is* that most advertising is misleading.
- 2  1.21 Listen to the recording and review your answer. Which word carries the main stress in each phrase?
- 3 Give your opinion on these statements, using the phrases above.
- Internet shopping is a great thing.
 - Fashions change too quickly.
 - Excessive packaging of products like groceries should be prohibited.
 - Shopping is hard work.

Technique

Talk about people or society in general in Part 3. Use your own experience as an example, but return to talk again about the general topic. In Part 1 you can personalize; in Part 3 you should generalize.

Technique

Pause briefly after saying one of these phrases, to give emphasis and to collect your thoughts before carrying on with your opinion.

1 Look at the photo and answer the questions below.

- Is the situation in the photo a tutorial, a seminar or a lecture? What is the difference?
- Which of the three modes of teaching do you think is the best way of learning?
- What are the similarities or differences between teaching in universities in your home country and other parts of the world like the UK?

2 Listening Section 3 often relates to academic courses. Complete the sentences below about courses with nouns from the list.

requirements ■ analysis ■ criteria ■ dissertation ■ essay ■ evaluation module ■ paper ■ portfolio ■ programme

- In order to study photography, you have to fulfil the course _____, which include a foundation qualification in art.
- Many people fail at medicine due to the difficulty of meeting the assessment _____.
- Most mature students enrol on a part-time _____.
- At the start of each academic year, students choose which core _____ they will take.
- As part of their jobs, many lecturers are expected to submit at least one academic _____ per year.
- Students on the fine art programme are required to present a _____ of their work.
- After collecting your data, you will need to carry out an in-depth _____ of it.
- To get a good mark, students should show they are capable of making a critical _____ of the literature.
- At the end of the course, each student must submit a 4,000-word long _____.
- After you have submitted your MA _____, you will have to wait about four months for your final grade.

Technique

Keep a record of words related to themes such as education. Make sure you keep an example of the context the word is used in. You can also put the words onto revision cards.

3 Look at the sentences in exercise 2 again. Which verb comes before the noun phrase in each case?

4 Decide which noun phrase in exercise 2 contains

- a adjective + noun, e.g. part-time programme
- b noun + noun, e.g. course requirements

5 The steps a–g below give details of how to prepare a piece of written work as part of a course. Work with another student. Put the steps in a logical order.

- a present an analysis of the data
- b include a bibliography
- c describe the methods used for collecting data
- d set out your hypothesis and explain your terms of reference
- e draw conclusions based on your analysis
- f provide a survey of existing literature
- g state your aims and objectives

6 The statements a–j below were made by students about courses they are taking. Check the meaning of each phrase and then complete the statements with a feature from the list.

research project ■ deadlines ■ easy-going tutors end-of-year examination ■ background reading list extensions ■ weekly seminars ■ individual tuition ongoing assessment ■ practical work ■ vocational content

- a The tutors provide you with a _____ before the course.
- b As part of our assessment, we have to plan and carry out a _____.
- c It's a very flexible programme: we have very _____.
- d It can get very stressful: we are assessed by _____.
- e Coursework has really fixed _____ . You can't get _____.
- f Everyone gets _____ if they are experiencing difficulties.
- g The course is marked by _____ of written work.
- h I spend a lot of time doing _____ in a laboratory.
- i It's mostly _____ : it will all be useful for my career.
- j There are regular _____ in which people take turns to make presentations.

7 With a partner, discuss these questions about the statements in exercise 6.

- a Which statements would attract you to take a course? Which would put you off?
- b Have you had experiences similar to these? If so, tell your partner about what happened to you.

8 Make a list of situations and processes related to education and update it as you prepare for the IELTS, e.g. lectures, tutorials, seminars, presentations. Keep words and phrases related to these situations, e.g. listen to/attend a lecture, make a presentation.

Technique

Record examples of the verb and noun phrases (adjective + noun and noun + noun) for your future reference.

Listening skills Identifying campus contexts

1 Listening Section 3 is normally set in a place of academic study. Complete each list below with nouns that you normally associate with them. Some examples are given in italics.

- | | |
|-------------------|-----------------------|
| a library | journals, |
| b student flat | study bedroom, |
| d lecture theatre | aisles, |
| e laboratory | experiment, |

2 Look at the first two multiple-choice questions in exercise 1 below. What words in the questions might help you to get the correct answers? Predict what the answers might be.

Using information in multiple-choice questions

1 The questions below are taken from a multiple-choice task. Read multiple-choice questions 1–4 and answer questions a–d.

- How many speakers do you think you will hear?
- Who has to do assignments?
- Which academic subject do you think they are studying?
- What area of that subject are they focusing on?

Technique

Use the information in the questions to give you an idea of what you will hear. You will not be able to guess the answers, but you will be able to predict the themes and topics of the passage.

- Where are the speakers having this discussion?
 - a library
 - a student flat
 - a lecture theatre
- How has Chloe spent the morning?
 - drinking coffee
 - training
 - studying
- According to Bill, what does the experiment show?
 - Quantities of water are hard to measure.
 - Children under five make many mistakes.
 - Clear thinking is difficult for small children.
- Bill's assignment is about the stages in a child's
 - emotional development.
 - mental development.
 - social development.

2  1.23 Listen to the first part of this Listening Section 3 recording and answer Questions 1–4 in exercise 1, choosing the correct answer A, B or C.

Answering summary completion questions

- 1 The list below gives eight popular degree subjects. Put them in order according to how easy or difficult you think each subject is (1 = easiest; 10 = most difficult).

psychology ■ medicine ■ engineering ■ law ■ physics sociology ■ languages ■ sports science ■ business studies ■ fine art

- 2 Compare your answers with another student. Then answer the questions below.
- Which of these subjects would you prefer to study? Why?
 - How far would you agree that the most popular subjects also tend to be the easiest?
 - Which subjects have you enjoyed studying most in the past? Why?

- 3 The paragraph below is taken from a summary completion task.

- Which speaker does it concentrate on?
- What aspect of her studies does it discuss?

Chloe started the psychology course in the 5 _____ year. Previously she studied law. She enjoyed studying the 6 _____ branch of that subject. The worst thing was having to remember lots of 7 _____ and _____. She found 8 _____ especially technical. She did not enjoy spending her time reading about 9 _____ in the library. The part of the psychology course she likes best is experimental psychology, because it involves 10 _____ activities.

- 4 Match each of the predictions below with a gap in the paragraph in exercise 3. Think of any other predictions you can add.

- It's an area of law, but it's technical, so maybe it's something like property law.
- It's an area of law, and it's interesting, so maybe it's something like family law.
- It's something that goes with activities, like useful or difficult.
- This is something like last, or an ordinal number like second.
- Something you have to remember, like names or dates.
- It's something lawyers read about, like judgements.

Technique

Use the reading time to think about the overall topic of the summary. The general topic of each answer may be clear from the context.

- 5  1.24 Listen to the second recording and complete the summary. Write NO MORE THAN TWO WORDS for each answer.

Speaking skills Describing people

- 1 Answer the questions below about the teachers you had at school.
- How well do you remember your teachers?
 - Was there a teacher you especially liked? Why?
 - How in general can teachers make lessons more interesting and fun? Is it important to do this? Is it always possible to do this?
- 2 Look at the list of qualities. Match them with the examples.

	Quality		Example	Importance
1	Audible	a	They avoid negative criticism.
2	Demanding	b	They tell lots of jokes.
3	Conscientious	c	They speak loudly.
4	Positive	d	They do not allow talking or playing in class.
5	Polite	e	They give a lot of praise.
6	Knowledgeable	f	They play competitive sport.
7	Strict	g	They mark and return students' work quickly.
8	Physically fit	h	They know everything about their subject.
9	Generous	i	They always say 'please' and 'thank you'.
10	Humorous	j	They set high standards.

- 3 a Decide how important each quality is: put I (Important), U (Useful) or N (Not Important) in the third column.
- b Are there any other qualities you would add to the list? Give the adjective and an example.
- 4  1.25 The task card below is taken from Speaking Part 2. Listen to a person talking about the topic on the task card. Make a brief note on the card of the answers they give to each prompt.

Describe a teacher you can remember from your schooldays.

You should say

- what subjects they taught
- what this teacher looked like
- what kind of person they were and explain how this person has influenced you.

Technique

Use an adjective to describe someone, and then follow it with a description of what he or she does. For example, 'Miss Jones was very strict – she insisted that every student put their hand up before asking a question and ...'.

5 Match each phrase in the list to one of the functions a–d.

- a Introducing your choice.
- b Explaining the reason for your choice.
- c Describing physical features.
- d Describing character.

Physically, he/she was ...
 The ... I've chosen is ...
 What ... taught me was that ...
 In terms of personality, ...
 I can remember ... really well.
 He/she looked ...
 Character-wise, he/she was ...
 I'll never forget him/her because ...

Technique

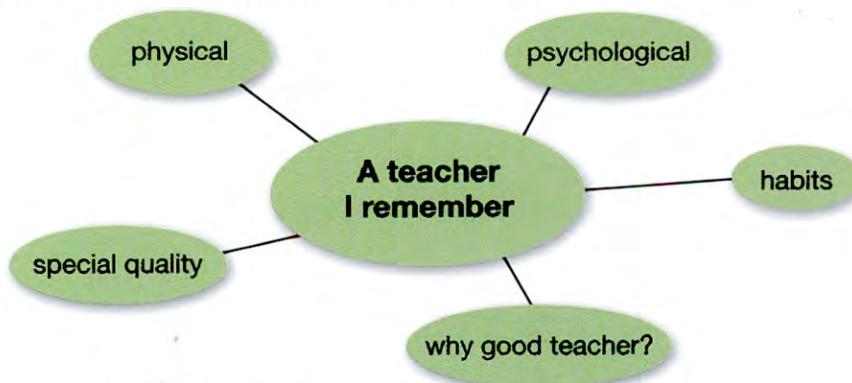

Use these phrases to structure your talk. Use them when you are moving from one point to the next.

6  1.25 Listen again. Which phrases from exercise 5 does the speaker use?

7 Take one minute to think and make notes for your own talk on this topic, using your own experience. Then practise speaking for two minutes using your notes and the phrases in exercise 5.

Making notes

1 Another student made the notes below for the Speaking Part 2 task card in exercise 4. Add the words in the list below to the appropriate part of the diagram.

- short
- fat
- amusing
- relaxed
- looked out of the window while speaking
- rolled tie up and down
- made boring subjects interesting
- made difficult subjects easy
- cheerful personality

2 Lists A and B below describe the advantages and disadvantages of different ways of making notes. Answer questions a–c.

- a Which list relates to the technique in exercise 1?
- b What kind of note-taking does the other list describe?
- c Which method of making notes would work best for you?

List A

encourages creative thinking many ways through the ideas takes little time to write uses very few words can be messy

List B encourages logical thinking one way through the ideas can take a long time to write uses more words

 very tidy

Technique

Use organic notes (like in this example) or linear notes. Use the kind you prefer and that does not take a lot of time in the exam.

Unit 4

- 3 Using the note-taking technique you prefer, make notes on the Speaking Part 2 task card below, using your own experience. Then practise speaking for two minutes using your notes.

Describe a person you know who has helped you in some way.

You should say

- how you know this person
- what abilities this person has
- when this person first helped you and explain how this help has influenced your life.

- 1 Look at the picture and answer the questions below.
- Are all of the attributes below suitable for a youth worker? Why/Why not?
 - being articulate
 - being prepared to learn
 - being full of energy
 - being responsible
 - being highly-motivated
 - being experienced
 - Is being a youth worker more suitable for a younger or an older person? Give reasons for your answer.
 - Would you apply for a job like this? Why/Why not?
- 2 Match each criterion 1–9 with a list of adjectives a–i. The first one has been done for you.
- | | |
|------------------------------------|---|
| 1 appearance c | a sociable, friendly, likeable, personable |
| 2 intellectual ability _____ | b articulate, outgoing, communicative, well-spoken |
| 3 maturity of outlook _____ | c well-dressed, neat, well-groomed, elegant |
| 4 interpersonal skills _____ | d conscientious, hardworking, dependable, reliable |
| 5 communication skills _____ | e well-qualified, computer-literate, well-trained |
| 6 willingness to learn _____ | f bright, quick, clever, intelligent |
| 7 qualifications _____ | g skilled, able, capable, experienced |
| 8 attitude to work _____ | h responsible, mature, grown-up, independent |
| 9 skills and general ability _____ | i enthusiastic, eager, dynamic, adaptable, flexible |

Technique

Learn how to describe and listen to descriptions of people and their attributes. It helps for both the listening and speaking component of the IELTS exam.

- 3 Add each of the adjectives below to the appropriate list a–i in exercise 2. One adjective is used twice.

trustworthy ■ lively ■ accomplished ■ approachable ■ smart ■ adult well-mannered ■ educated

4 The adjectives in the list below are opposites of those in the lists in exercise 2. Match each adjective with its opposite.

apathetic ■ careless ■ childish ■ inarticulate ■ scruffy ■ slow ■ uneducated ■ unfriendly ■ inexperienced

5 Divide questions a–h below into these two categories: closed question (can be answered yes or no), open question (requires a fuller answer).

- a Does a young worker nowadays need to be more qualified than in the past?
- b Are young people more or less interested in finding a career than in the past?
- c What difficulties do young people face in the changing world we live in?
- d Do you generally find job interviews difficult?
- e How do you think the work environment will be changed for future generations of young people?
- f What can be done to overcome these difficulties?
- g How does this differ from the past?
- h Why/Why not?

Technique

Learn to distinguish between different types of questions. They are often divided into open and closed categories. Closed questions can be answered yes or no, whereas open questions require a fuller answer. As you prepare for the exam, build up a bank of examples of open and closed questions in the listening and speaking component. Compile example answers to go with them. You can record these electronically or on cards.

6 In which part of the Speaking test, Part 1 or Part 3, would you expect to find the questions in exercise 5?

7 Decide which questions in exercise 5 could be answered by beginning with the phrases below.

There are many problems, but perhaps the greatest challenge is ...

Listening skills Understanding maps

1 Look at the map and answer the questions.

- What is between the station and the town hall?
- What is opposite the post office?
- What is next to the cinema?

Technique

When you see a map question, run through all the words to describe position that you know. Common prepositions are in front of, next to, behind, beside, opposite, etc. You will probably hear some of them in the listening.

2 Look at the map again and match the sentence beginnings to the endings to make true statements. More than one ending is usually possible.

- | | |
|------------------------------|--|
| 1 Coming out of the station | a the town hall is behind you. |
| 2 Leaving the town hall | b the cinema is in front of you. |
| 3 As you enter the town hall | c the post office is on your right. |
| 4 As you leave the café | d the post office is on your left. |
| 5 On your way into the café | e the post office is further away than the station. |
| 6 As you go into the station | f the cinema is further away than the shopping mall. |

3 Match the uses of right in these sentences with the correct meaning.

- The cinema is right in front of you.
 - The post office is the right place to buy stamps.
 - Coming from the café, the shopping mall is on your right.
- correct
 - opposite of left
 - directly, immediately

4 The map on the next page is taken from a map-labelling task. Look at the map and answer questions a–d. Use these words in your answers:

beside ■ near ■ between

- Where is question 1 in relation to the food tent?
- Where is question 2 in relation to campsite 1 and the disabled viewing?
- Where is question 3 in relation to the stage and the bar?
- Where is question 3 in relation to the disabled viewing?

Technique
 Look carefully at the map and ask yourself where things are in relation to the question numbers. Then listen for descriptions which match your ideas.

5 1.29 Listen to the first part of the recording and label the map. Write the correct letters A–F next to questions 1–3 on the map.

- A small security office
- B main security office
- C first aid tent
- D staff toilets
- E staff meeting point
- F visitors' meeting point

Answering sentence and table completion questions

- 1 Read the sentence and table completion questions which follow from the map-labelling task above. Then answer questions a–c below.
- a What is the general theme of questions 4–6?
 - b Which questions in 4–6 relate to an event, a place and a thing?
 - c Which answers in the table are predictable, to some extent?

Technique
 Check that you can find all the places on the map that the questions relate to. The information comes in the same order as the questions.

Complete the sentences below.

Write NO MORE THAN TWO WORDS for each answer.

- 4 In the first year, it was a, and not a real festival.
- 5 Shortly afterwards the event was moved, and the was in the background.
- 6 Now the festival is held in the Complete the table below.

2 Number the jobs in the list below according to how well-paid they are (1 = highest paid; 4 = lowest paid) and according to how socially useful they are (1 = most useful; 4 = least useful).

bus driver ■ dentist ■ shop assistant ■ pop star

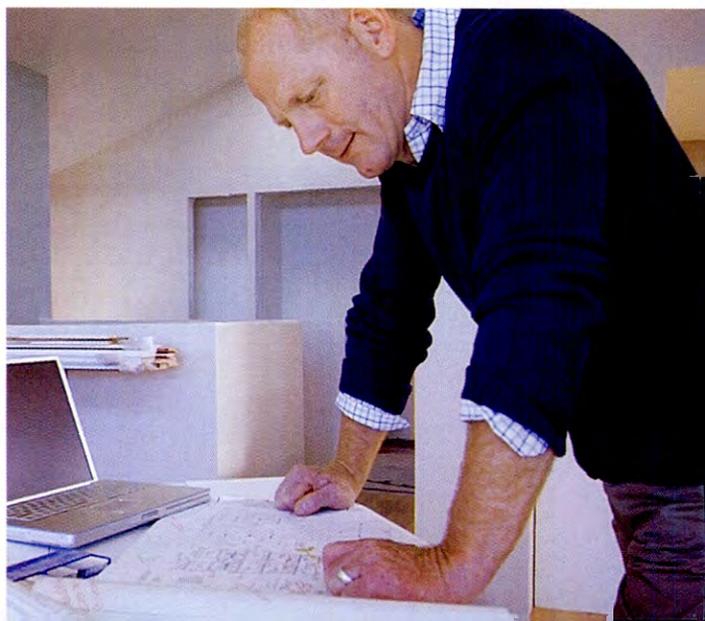

3 Answer these questions about your answers in exercise 2.

- Is the situation fair? Should the situation be different?
- Should governments try to change the situation?

4 Which features from the list would you associate with each job a–h?

- architect
- nurse
- company director
- politician
- doctor
- schoolteacher
- chef
- footballer

risk ■ excitement ■ social prestige ■ long holidays long training ■ high job satisfaction variety of job activities ■ high pay ■ good pension social usefulness ■ expensive training

Stating advantages and disadvantages

- 1  1.31 Listen to three people talking about jobs and answer the questions.
- Which of them talk about working while studying?
 - Which of them talk about their own full-time job?
 - Which of them do not believe that working while studying is a good thing?

- 2  1.31 Answer questions a–i below with phrases from the list. Then listen again to the people speaking to check your answers.

First speaker

Technique

Structure your answers in Part 3. Memorize phrases like these and use them as triggers to help you to give fuller and longer answers.

- 5 With a partner, ask and answer these Speaking Part 3 questions.
- Is it a good idea to take a gap year after university and before starting a job?
 - When people are studying at university, is it better for them to live at home or to move away from their families?
 - Which is more important in a job, money or job satisfaction?
 - Which are more useful in helping people to relax – mental activities or physical activities?

Pronunciation: stressing compound adjectives

- 1  1.32 Where is the main stress on the word in bold in this sentence? Underline it.

The university has a well-stocked library. well OR stocked ?

What about this sentence?

The library is well-stocked. well OR stocked?

Listen and check your answer.

- 2 From your answer in exercise 1, can you state the rules? Delete as appropriate.
- The main stress is usually on the first/second part of a compound adjective, when it comes before a noun.
 - The main stress is usually on the first/second part of a compound adjective, when it is alone, or after a verb.

- 3  1.33 A student is describing life at his university. The compound adjectives are in bold. Underline the main stress. The first one is done for you:

open-minded: (main stress: mind)

I like it here. The tutors are open-minded and easy-going. One or two of them are world-famous. I have to do a thousand-word essay every fortnight and there is an end-of-year exam. The campus-based accommodation is very good, although it is not cheap. Internet connection is provided, and there is a user-friendly student intranet. The town is densely-populated and has lots of nightlife. Life is worry-free here. I must go now – I've got an hour-long seminar to prepare for.

Listen and check your answers.

- 4 Now read the passage aloud, putting the stress in the correct places.
- 5 Think of someone you know. Using the adjectives below, write sentences about him or her, changing the position of the adjective. Then practise saying the sentences.

well-mannered ■ smartly-dressed ■ fair-minded ■ easy-going ■ quick-thinking good-looking ■ well-travelled ■ warm-hearted ■ good-humoured ■ sports-mad

Technique

Use adjectives and phrases like these in answer to Part 1 questions.

Technique

Use adjectives like these for Part 2, if you are asked to describe someone you know.

9	30	31	1	2	3	4

Saturday 16 March
 a.m. 11.00 meet Ken in town – coffee p.m. 2.30 golf with David at club eve 7.30 cinema: Les Misérables
 Meet the girls at 7.00 in the usual place.

Saturday 16 March
 Ken was delayed so did shopping at the supermarket. Met him for lunch – he paid! Big rush to get to the club in time. David had brought Bill and Charlotte. We all played. I need a lot more practice! Only Janet arrived for the movie, so we went to see Skyfall instead. Great fun, better than Les Misérables, I imagine.

- a What are the differences between the two diaries?
 - b Do you think her day was better than she had planned or not?
 - c Is it better to make detailed plans for the future or to leave some things to chance?
 - d What can be the disadvantages of planning ahead?
- 2 Put the leisure activities in the list into three groups 1–3. Some activities may appear in more than one group.

- 1 Sports
- 2 Hobbies
- 3 Social activities

golf ■ ice hockey ■ chess ■ stamp-collecting ■ meeting friends ■ tennis ■ gardening going to concerts ■ going to parties ■ chatting on the phone ■ football ■ shopping

3 In Speaking Part 1, you may be asked about your leisure activities. Answer these questions about the activities in exercise 2.

- a Which of these, if any, do you like doing?
- b Are there other activities, hobbies or sports which take up a lot of your time?
- c To what extent do you plan how and when you do them?

Technique

Be ready to speak about your hobbies and social life in the Speaking module. Make a list of key points on these topics. Don't learn a 'speech' by heart.

Expressing preferences

1 2.2 Listen to three people talking about what they like doing in their free time. Complete the table below with the activities they like doing. Which is their favourite?

Activities	Favourite
Speaker 1: _____	_____
Speaker 2: _____	_____
Speaker 3: _____	_____

2 2.2 Complete the lists of expressions below for expressing and explaining preferences. If necessary, listen again to the people talking and fill in the gaps.

Phrase bank

Expressing preferences

- I listening to music.
- My thing of all is going to the theatre
- I being outdoors ...
- Best of, I like gardening.
- I sports

Explaining preferences

What me is that ...
 That's thing about ...
 thing I gardening is that ...
 And other is that I can ...
 I can do it fun or
 I it relaxing.

Technique

Use different phrases to introduce preferences as these will provide variety and show you can use a range of language. Use because to explain why you prefer something.

3 With a partner, ask and answer the Speaking Part 1 questions below, using the expressions in the list above to help you.

- a How do you spend your weekends?
b What else do you like doing in your free time?

Dealing with unfamiliar topics

1 Which of the activities below do you know something about? Which do you know little about?

playing a musical instrument ■ painting ■ cookery

2 Match each question 1–4 with an answer a–d.

- 1 Are you able to play any musical instruments?
2 Do you have any artistic abilities?
3 What sort of food do you enjoy cooking and eating?
4 Which games do you enjoy playing?
- a I'm afraid I have absolutely no skill in this area at all. But I might learn in the future. It is simply too expensive to live on fast food.
b I don't normally play games. When I was a child, I spent all my free time playing in the countryside, rather than playing proper games. And now I have little time for games – I relax by reading.
c Unfortunately not. I have very little practical ability, and things like that are difficult for me. I tried when I was at school, but without success.
d I wish I could. My parents made me take lessons when I was very young, but I just made a terrible noise and they let me give it up. I don't think I have any ability in that direction.

3 Answer these questions about the responses in exercise 2.

- a What do all four responses have in common?
b Which expressions does each speaker use to say 'no'?
c Match the answers (a, b, c, d) with the content in the table below. Some answers have more than one kind of content.

Content of answer	Answer
Past experience and the result
No past experience and the reason
A reference to future intentions and hopes
A reference to personal level of skill

- 4 With a partner, practise asking and answering these questions, which may be difficult for some candidates. Use the expressions you identified in exercise 3.
- a Are you interested in drawing?
 - b Do you like singing?
 - c Can you dance?
 - d Are you good at making things?

- 5 With a partner, ask and answer this typical Speaking Part 1 question sequence.
- a Do you have any hobbies?
 - b How and why did you first get involved in this activity?
 - c Would you recommend it to another person? Why/Why not?

Technique

Say why it is difficult to answer – if it is difficult to answer. Say what experience you have of this kind of thing. Explain your personal situation. Talk about how you might like to do this kind of thing in future.

Pronunciation: shifting syllable stress

- 1 2.3 Listen and underline the stressed syllables in these words.

Examiner: What are you studying now?

Candidate: I am studying 1 _____ at the moment but I am changing to 2 _____ sciences next year.

Examiner: Why is that?

Candidate: Too many people are studying 3 _____ now so there are not enough jobs for 4 _____. 5 _____ is still expanding and so I hope there will be a job for me when I have finished.

Technique

Make sure you can pronounce the key words in the subject(s) that you are studying and that you might want to talk about in the Speaking module.

Topic talk

- 1 Describe the two photos.
- 2 Answer the questions below.
 - a Do you think that artists and scientists are born or are they made? Why/Why not?
 - b What kind of attributes do you need to study sciences or the arts? Do scientists and artists both need to be creative?
 - c Do you think it is possible for students to combine both the arts and sciences at school or university? Why/Why not?
 - d What made you choose the subject(s) you are studying? If you could, would you change your mind now?
- 3 Decide which adjective best matches the descriptions a–i below.

Example

a ostentatious

original ■ talented ■ rigorous ■ curious ■ accomplished ostentatious ■ expressive ■ impartial ■ creative

 - a He's very pretentious and likes to show everyone how rich he is.
 - b He plays the violin so well.
 - c His approach to experiments is very precise and methodical.
 - d She may be a budding artist but her work is very avant-garde and has never been seen before.
 - e She has been described as a very gifted and ingenious sculptor.
 - f His poems are very moving as they show his emotions clearly.
 - g He has to be neutral in his work and cannot allow his emotions to take over.
 - h His books are full of original ideas.
 - i Even as a young chemist she had a very inquiring mind and investigated everything thoroughly.
- 4 Write the noun form for each adjective in exercise 3.

Example

ostentatious, ostentation

Technique

Keep a record of adjectives relating to people's personality and attributes. Record examples for the adjectives and write other words such as nouns related to the adjective, e.g. creative/creativity.

- 5 With a partner, choose five nouns or adjectives from exercises 3 and 4 and explain why the qualities are necessary. Give your own reasons.

Example

Why does an artist need to be talented/have talent?

Someone who is involved in the arts has to have talent, because ...

- 6 In the IELTS Listening component, you may have to listen to someone talking about rules, procedures or guidelines. Look at the list below and decide what the speaker is talking about in a–h.

Example

And finally you have to have the report on the chemistry experiment in by the end of the week.
assignment deadline

assignment deadline

society/club constitution

- a You must be in by midnight, as the doors are locked. You must then call the porter.
b When the final bell rings, you must put your pens down immediately.
c The essay on Fine Art needs to be typed and bound.
d The use of PowerPoint is a must. Your physics experiment will be marked on your presentation.
e It is essential that members follow the rules at all times.
f All you need to know about how to do this is contained in this booklet.
g All history essays must be handed in by noon on Friday.
h When you send the form, two photographs need to be included.
- 7 Work with a partner and describe your reaction to one or more of the items in the list in exercise 6. For example, do you like trying to meet assignment deadlines?
- 8 Decide which of the following words mean the same as compulsory.

notoptional ■ mandatory ■ certain ■ obligatory ■ possible ■ requisite ■ vital ■ imperative ■ crucial

- 9 Work with a partner and give your own explanation for the questions below. In each case, use two of the following phrases in your answer: in order to, because, for example, like or if.
- a Why is it necessary to present assignments well in all disciplines?
b What is the effect of visuals in a presentation? Do you think they should be compulsory even in essays?
c What is the benefit of a bibliography when you produce an essay?
d Why is preparation for any assignment crucial?
e Is writing a draft of an essay or report essential? Why/Why not?
f What in your opinion is the key to preparing a good assignment?
g What qualities do you need to show when you are making a presentation of your work?

Listening skills Making questions from statements

1 The questions below are taken from a multiple-choice task. Read questions 1–5 carefully and answer the questions below.

- a What is the general topic?
- b What group of people is the speaker talking to?

2 Some of the question stems are phrased as statements. Rephrase each statement as a question.

Example

Teachers visiting a festival should arrive at ...

When should teachers visiting the festival arrive?

Questions 1–5

Choose the correct letter A, B or C.

- 1 What will the head of science probably do?
 - A arrange the visit to the festival
 - B confirm the school placements
 - C provide information about the festival
- 2 The student teachers should arrange visits that last
 - A one or two days.
 - B two or three days.
 - C all three days.
- 3 The most important purpose of festival visits is to
 - A get better exam grades.
 - B create enthusiasm for science.
 - C enable students to have fun.
- 4 The central features of our scientific age are
 - A inventions and improvements.
 - B interesting and unusual events.
 - C interest and enthusiasm for science.
- 5 What kind of specialists are teaching maths?
 - A physicists
 - B biologists
 - C chemists

Technique

Pay attention to the stems (i.e. the first part) of multiple-choice questions. After that, look carefully and quickly at the alternatives and think about the relationship between the stem and the alternatives (e.g. cause and effect).

3  2.8 Listen to the recording and answer questions 1–5 in exercise 2.

Paraphrasing for matching

- 1 Read the extract below from a review of the book Science in our World. Match each chapter subject a–e with the chapter numbers 1–5.

Chapter 1 concerns the purpose of science in the early days, namely to foretell the future by studying the stars. Science has had a long journey through the past centuries and this story is told in Chapter 2. The catastrophes that science has caused in the world are dealt with in Chapter 3. Some biographies of the celebrated names of science are given in Chapter 4. Finally, the innovations that science has brought to our lives are covered in Chapter 5.

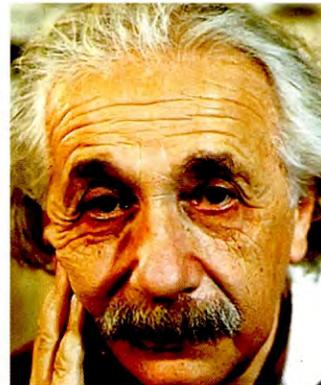

Technique

Predict the words or phrases you might hear in matching tasks by thinking of synonyms or paraphrases for options given.

Science in our World

Contents

- Chapter 1: _____ a history of science
 Chapter 2: _____ b famous scientists
 Chapter 3: _____ c astrology and science
 Chapter 4: _____ d new things from science
 Chapter 5: _____ e scientific disasters

- 2 Underline synonyms or paraphrases in the extract which match the words in italics in a–e above.
- 3 The questions below are taken from a matching task. Read the questions and options carefully. Then answer questions a–d below.

- A a show
 B an event of local interest
 C a technical demonstration
 D an open discussion
 E an interactive event
- 6 Waterworld
 7 Transport 2050
 8 Science in a suitcase
 9 Ropes and hangings
 10 Paper and time

- a What kinds of options are given in A–E?
 b What do the capital letters in 6–10 tell you?
 c Which list do you expect to be paraphrased in the recording?
 d Which words or expressions might be used by the speakers to paraphrase this list? Make a list for each item.
- 4 2.9 Listen to the recording and answer the questions in exercise 3. Write the correct letters A–E next to the questions 6–10.

Speaking skills Comparing and evaluating

1 Read the short texts below and answer the questions.

The sculptor made a laughing head. He put it on a stand and entered it for the modern art competition. The head became separated from the stand. This left the stand and a little stick of wood on the top. The judges never saw the head, but the stand and stick of wood was presented to them and they awarded it a prize. The sculptor was surprised but very happy.

He was quickly cleaning up his laboratory and put an old dish of liquid on a window shelf. He locked up and went home. A few weeks later he remembered the dish and looked at it. Then he saw something unusual about the liquid. And so penicillin was born!

- a What was the accident that happened in each case? What was the result of each accident?
b Which are more important – the accidents of science or the accidents of art?

2 Separate the words and phrases into two lists: words and phrases associated with the arts and those associated with the sciences.

Arts _____

Sciences _____

numeracy ■ knowledge of humanity ■ performance analytical ■ creative ■ demonstration ■ discipline mysterious ■ knowledge of the universe ■ experiment certainty ■ literacy ■ incremental ■ work of art imagination ■ original ■ definite ■ uncertainty

3 Answer these questions about the lists you made in exercise 2.

- a Which words were difficult to categorize?
b Can you think of examples to justify applying some science words to the arts and vice versa?

4 Read the three typical Speaking Part 3 questions below. Which questions require a comparison in response? Which require an evaluation?

- a Which provides the best entertainment: a novel or a film?
b To what extent have people's lives been improved by science?
c To what degree are our lives improved by the arts?
d Which is more important in modern cultures: scientific or artistic ability?

5 Phrases 1–6 below can be used to answer the questions in exercise 4. Match the phrases with the questions. One phrase can go with more than one question.

- 1 The key difference between the two is ...
- 2 Oh, very much. For example, ...
- 3 Very little. The justification for these things is ...
- 4 They are both crucial for our daily lives, but of the two I would say ...
- 5 Making a choice between these two is very difficult because ...
- 6 I think ... is more important because ...

6 With a partner, ask and answer the questions in exercise 4. Use the phrases above in your answers.

Technique

Make sure you answer the question. For example, you may need to compare novels and films in general – a comparison. Or, you may need to give your opinion on quality – an evaluation. Don't just talk about the last film you saw.

Expressing others' views

1 Some students expressed these opinions about science and the arts. Read their statements and decide whether you agree or disagree. Change the opinions so that they express your views.

Science has the ability to make all our lives much easier.

The arts teach us what it means to be human.

Most of the arts are of no practical use and are a waste of time.

Science will certainly lead the world to disaster.

2 2.10 Listen to three speakers answer Speaking Part 3 questions. Match each speaker with the correct question a–c.

Speaker 1: _____

Speaker 2: _____

Speaker 3: _____

- a To what extent should the arts be sponsored by government?
- b Why do you think some people are distrustful of science?
- c How can new technology help in our domestic lives?

3 Which one of these arguments does each speaker in exercise 2 agree with?

- a Technology just creates more work.
- b The arts contribute to society.
- c Technology makes tasks easier.
- d Scientists aren't engaged with the world.
- e The arts should be more commercial.
- f Scientists understand the impact of their ideas.

Technique

Use the following structure (to give yourself time to think): Give commonly held opinions first, comment on them and then give your own opinion. This is especially useful in Part 3.

4 2.10 Listen to the three speakers again. Check your answers to exercise 3 and complete the table below with the phrases each speaker uses to introduce other people's opinions.

	Other people's opinions
Speaker 1:	_____
Speaker 2:	_____
Speaker 3:	_____

5 2.10 Listen a final time. Make a note of the phrases the speakers use to disagree with other people's opinions.

Disagreeing

Speaker 1:	_____
Speaker 2:	_____
Speaker 3:	_____

- 6 With a partner, ask and answer the Speaking Part 3 question sequences below. Use the phrases in exercises 3 and 4 to introduce other views and your own.

Sequence 1

- a What harm can science do to us?
- b Which is more important in our society today, the sciences or the arts?
- c Should governments subsidize scientific research? Why?

Sequence 2

- a How big a part do machines play in our lives today?
- b What are some of the problems with being so dependent on machines?
- c To what extent would it be better to lead a simpler life, without advanced technology?

Pronunciation: weak forms and /ə/

- 1  2.11 Each of these words has the sound /ə/ in it once. Listen and underline the /ə/ sound. You will hear the /ə/ sound first.

about ■ Internet ■ doctor

- 2  2.12 Look at the words in bold in the following sentences. In one case the word is pronounced with /ə/, in one case it is not. Listen and underline the word which has /ə/.

- a The city of Northbridge has some ultra-modern buildings, some of which are in the science park.
- b There is a university there, also.
- c That makes it the most important science park that you will find in this part of the country.

- 3 Put a tick (✓) or a cross (X), as appropriate in the table.

	/ə/ used for the vowel sound ✓/X
Some meaning a part of a greater number
Some meaning an indefinite amount
There meaning a place
There introducing a sentence
That pointing at something
That connecting two parts of a sentence

- 4  2.13 Underline the words in bold below which are pronounced with /ə/. Listen and check your answers.

The Mercury Gallery has opened an art exhibition in Bond Street. There are paintings by foreign and British artists there. You can see some examples of the best that modern art can offer. Some works are abstract and some are figurative, but all are wonderfully imaginative. That is why the exhibition is so popular.

- 5 Practise saying the text, pronouncing the /ə/ in the right places.

SPEAKING SKILLS

Describing animals
 Describing presents
 Pronunciation: contrastive stress

Topic talk

- 1 Describe the photo and answer questions a–d.
- Do you find places like the scene in the picture beautiful or boring?
 - Why are places like this attractive to people?
 - Why do we need places like this more and more in the modern world?
 - What kind of places do you like to visit? Do you prefer places in towns and cities or in the countryside?

- 2 Decide whether the statements below show the speaker is enthusiastic or unenthusiastic about a place.
- The holiday cottage caught my attention immediately, so I bought it.
 - I have been fascinated by the building since I first saw it.
 - As it's in the middle of nowhere, it's very peaceful.
 - The house is basically okay.
 - Living in such a remote area is just about bearable.
 - Even though it's in the middle of the city, it's not at all noisy.
 - What makes the place so attractive is the open fields.
 - The reason why it appeals to me is the sound of the crashing waves at night.

- 3 Add the following phrases to as many of the sentences a–h above as you can.

Example

a 2;5

- but it's in danger of being spoilt by tourists visiting it.
- but sadly I haven't visited it for years.
- In fact, at times it's quieter than the countryside.
- but I'm afraid that won't last long.
- but at times it can be lonely there.

4 Read the example below. Then rewrite sentences a–g, beginning with what.

Example

The open fields make the place so attractive.

What makes the place so attractive is the open fields.

- a The silence there makes me feel so relaxed.
- b Being away from the city does me a lot of good.
- c The place is restful because there are no shops.
- d The sea is clean because there are no factories.
- e The trees make the garden very private.
- f The people make the area so welcoming.
- g The area is appealing because it has many tourist attractions.

Technique

Use different structures in the speaking component to add variety, such as The house is quiet because there are no neighbours. What makes the house quiet is not having (any) neighbours. Learn to recognize information expressed in different ways in the listening component as well.

5 With a partner, practise asking questions beginning with why based on the statements in exercise 4. Then answer with sentences beginning with what.

Example

Why is the place so relaxing?

What makes me relaxed there is the silence.

6 In Speaking Part 2, you may be asked to talk about a place or something else from your personal experience. Complete each of the statements below with an example from your own life.

- a The building that I like most is ...
- b The pet I remember best is ...
- c The present I will never forget was ...
- d The incident that embarrassed me most was ...
- e One holiday I will never forget was ...
- f A school trip I remember well was ...

Technique

Notice how different types of structures are repeated in parts of the exam. For example, in Speaking Part 2 you usually begin with a noun phrase with a defining relative clause, e.g. The building that I like most is ...

7 Write a follow-up sentence with what to develop each of the ideas in exercise 6.

Example

What I like most about the building is the large windows.

8 With a partner, describe the items and experiences in exercise 6. Start with your sentences. Then develop your ideas using the words below.

because ■ as ■ since ■ with ■ which Listening skills Changing opinions

1 Read the four dialogues below.

- a Which speakers change their minds?
b What phrases do they use to indicate this?

1
A What river's that?
B That's the River Exe, no, I mean the River Avon.

2
C Ben Nevis is the tallest mountain in Scotland. In the UK, in fact.
D Really?

E If we leave now, we will see the sunset.
F I'm not so sure about that. The sky looks very cloudy.
E Actually, you're right. It might be better to wait until another day.

G If we visit the lake this afternoon, we may see the ducks flying in.
H I think you'll find they come in greater numbers in the evening.
G Yes, that's what I meant, in the evening. We'll see thousands in the evening.

2 Read the dialogue. Then answer questions a–c below.

Boy What shall we do this morning? We can visit the monkeys first – they're always fun.
Girl But the monkeys will be fed in the afternoon. That will be the best time to see them.
Boy Well, we can see the elephants, then.
Girl The keepers bring them out after midday too.
Boy Then we should visit the aquarium – the fish are always awake.
Girl That's a good idea. We'll see the fish. And what about the lions?
Boy The big cat enclosure is not open today, although we can see the tigers this morning if we want.
Girl Yes, let's see those and the fish. And then we can have lunch.
Boy All right. Let's go.

- a How many animals do they talk about visiting?
b How many animals do they decide to visit?
c At what stage in the conversation do you know their decision: the beginning, the middle or the end?

Technique

Listen carefully for speakers who change their opinion. In extended multiple-choice questions, you may hear most or all of the options on the recording. When speakers change their minds, you cannot answer the question with certainty until the discussion is finished.

Answering multiple-choice questions

1 The questions in exercise 3 on page 65 come from an extended multiple-choice task. Skim read the questions. Which of the following topics do you think you will hear about? Which are not so likely? Put a tick (✓), question mark (?) or a cross (X) by each one.

animals ■ assignments ■ circuses ■ zoos ■ television schools ■ car accidents ■ banks ■ museums

Technique

Skim read the questions and the alternatives to get the idea of what the recording will be about. This will help you to understand it better.

2 Now think about the topic of the listening text, by answering these questions.

What is the difference between:

- a zoo and a circus?
- predator and prey?
- entertainment and education?
- a cage and a park?
- wild and domestic?
- conservation and extinction?

Technique

Spend a little time thinking about the topic before you listen to the recording. Ask yourself: What do I know about this subject already?

Questions 1–3

Choose THREE letters A–G.

What topics must the assignment cover?

- | | |
|------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| A zoo finances | E education and zoos |
| B public safety | F zoos for science |
| C the history of zoos | G value for money |
| D animal welfare | |

Questions 4 and 5

Choose TWO letters A–E.

Which areas do the students decide to concentrate their efforts on?

- | | |
|------------------------|-----------------------|
| A science | D conservation |
| B history | E education |
| C entertainment | |

Technique

Put the answers in any order, e.g. A, C or C, A, etc.

4 2.16 Listen to the first part of the recording and answer questions 1–5.

Completing a summary (2)

1 The paragraph below is taken from a summary completion task. Read the paragraph and decide what kind of information is missing in each question. Match each space 6–10 with a phrase from the list.

an activity ■ a person ■ a date ■ a number ■ a place ■ a colour ■ an adjective

The Arabian oryx is mainly 6 _____ in colour. It lives in a 7 _____ climate.

In 8 _____ it became extinct. Now, there are about 9 _____ in Oman. A crash in the population was caused by 10 _____.

2 2.17 Listen to the second part of the recording and complete the summary. Write NO MORE THAN TWO WORDS AND/OR A NUMBER for each answer.

Speaking skills Describing animals

1 Read the short texts in which people talk about pets they had as children. Match each description a–c with an animal from the list.

cat ■ parrot ■ dog ■ rabbit ■ horse ■ goldfish ■ mouse

a

We had him for about ten years. I grew up with him, I suppose. He was always very lively when someone new arrived at the house, jumping up and wagging his tail. The fondest memory I have is of taking him for walks along the canal. I also enjoyed throwing a stick for him in the park. When he was happy he'd bark a lot. I really miss him.

b

She was a real character. I wouldn't say she was friendly – quite the opposite, in fact. She had a habit of arching her back and scratching people she didn't like. But what I remember most is letting her curl up on my lap, and then stroking her. I'm not sure who found it the most relaxing, me or her. She certainly liked it, and she always purred very loudly.

c

Looking after her involved quite a lot of work. We used to have to go to the farm every night with a bale of hay to feed her. I also used to groom her, which was fun, but hard work. So it was all quite tough, but worth it in the end. What sticks in my mind is the way she used to get excited just before we started jumping. They were very happy times.

Technique

Prepare some vocabulary relating to animals and pets. Then you will be able to answer questions on this topic in Parts 1 and 2.

2 Read the descriptions again. Complete the first column of the table below with the name of the animal. Then write verbs typical of that animal in the second column. One has been done for you.

Animal	Typical actions	Human actions
a _____	jump up	_____
b _____	_____	_____
c _____	_____	_____

3 Complete the third column with verbs that describe what people typically do with these animals, for example take them for walks.

4 Each text in exercise 1 contains a phrase for introducing a memory. Find and underline these three phrases.

5  2.18 Listen to three people talking about animals and pets. Decide which speaker is answering which question below.

- a What was your pet like?
- b Have you ever had a favourite pet?
- c What was your favourite pet animal when you were a child?

- 6  2.18 Listen again. What phrase does each speaker use to show he/she does not regard the animal as a pet?

Speaker 1: ... although _____ a pet, _____ .

Speaker 2: I'm _____ is a real pet ...

Speaker 3: _____ , he wasn't my pet at all ...

- 7 The task card below is taken from Speaking Part 2. Take one minute to think and make notes about your own talk on this topic, using your own experience. Then practise speaking for two minutes using your notes.

Describe an animal which belonged to you or someone you know.

You should say

what type of animal it was what personality it had what it typically did and explain your own personal reaction to the animal.

Describing presents

- 1 Read the following slogan from a public information campaign. Then answer questions a–c below.

A pet is for life.

- What do you think the campaign is about?
- Do you think animals make good gifts?
- What questions should you ask yourself before you give a gift like this?

- 2 The list below gives common occasions on which people give presents. Answer questions a–c below.

wedding ■ birthday ■ wedding anniversary ■ religious festival moving house ■ leaving a job ■ visiting a friend's home

- On which of these occasions do you give presents in your country?
- Are there any other occasions on which you give presents?
- What presents are suitable for each occasion?

- 3 Read these two articles about present giving. Then answer questions a–c below.

Present madness

The greetings card industry is making more and more money every year. There are so many occasions on which we must give greetings cards now. Mother's Day and Father's Day require cards and presents from all to all. Soon, I firmly believe, we will have Brother's, Sister's, Uncle's, Aunt's, and probably Dog's Days. All needing a card, all needing a present. Someone, please, say 'Enough!'.

East meets west

We are picking up the delightful habits of some Asian countries. Small, carefully and tastefully wrapped presents for all kinds of informal occasions – and sometimes for no occasion at all – are the fashion among young people everywhere now. A wonderful fashion it is, too.

- Which article is critical of present and card giving?
- Do you enjoy giving cards and presents? Do you like receiving them?
- Should we give and receive presents more frequently than we do?

Technique

Prepare vocabulary relating to cultural activities, e.g. festivities and holidays, including any food or drink associated with them.

- 4 Read this Speaking Part 2 task card. Take a minute to think and make notes about your own talk on this topic, using your own experience. Then practise speaking for two minutes using your notes.

Describe a present you received and that you liked very much.

You should say

- who gave the present to you and on what occasion
- what it was like
- what you did with it and explain why you liked the present.

Technique

Think of an object which you did something active with, or which you received on a special occasion so you'll have something to say.

Pronunciation: contrastive stress

- 1  2.19 Underline the main or sentence stress in the following sentences. The first one has been done for you. Listen and check.
- a We had a problem with security.
We had a problem with security.
 - b We wanted an active dog.
 - c We wanted him to bark at intruders.
 - d We wanted him to bite burglars.
 - e We wanted him to wake up at the sound of the alarm.
- 2 Delete as appropriate to state the rule:
The main or sentence stress is normally on the first/last content word in the sentence.
- 3  2.20 Extra parts (in italics) have been added to four of the sentences in exercise 1. Listen to the longer sentences and underline the main stress in each part of the sentence. The first one has been done for you.
- a We wanted an active dog, but we got a lazy dog.
 - b We wanted him to bark at intruders, but he licked intruders.
 - c We wanted him to bite burglars, but he welcomed burglars.
 - d We wanted him to wake up at the sound of the alarm, but he fell asleep at the sound of it.
- 4 Delete as appropriate to state the rule:
When there is a contrast of ideas, the contrasting words/the repeated words carry the main stress.
- 5 Now say the sentences in exercise 3, putting the stress in the same places as in the recording.
- 6  2.21 A candidate is describing, in Speaking Part 2, a product he bought which was not satisfactory. He chose to speak about a bicycle.
- a In the phrases in bold, underline a suitable word to carry the main stress.
... firstly, the bell. It is one thing to have a quiet bell, but this was a whispering bell. Then the light: at night one needs a bright light, not like this one, which was the faintest of lights. Then, it was heavy. I needed to take it on the train, so a light bike was what I needed. I sold it back to the shop and bought a more expensive bike, which I still have – my dream bike. But while I had the bike ...
 - b Listen and check.
 - c Say the candidate's words, using the appropriate stress.

1 Look at the photos and answer questions a–d below.

- Which of these sports would you like to play? Which would you prefer to watch?
- Which of these sports are most and least beneficial to your health?
- Which sports are the most popular in your country? Why?
- Which categories below do the sports in the photos belong to? Think of other sports for each category.

water sports ■ adventure sports ■ motor sports ■ blood sports team sports ■ non-contact sports ■ racket sports ■ indoor sports outdoor sports

2 Match each statement 1–6 with the correct explanation a–f.

- I prefer contact sports like football and rugby,
 - Swimming is the only individual sport I like,
 - Everyone should take up some form of physical exercise,
 - I like skiing and other winter sports,
 - I suppose I'm mostly interested in spectator sports,
 - The kinds of sports I'm really against are blood sports,
- since it will keep them healthy and prevent illness.
 - basically because I'm not a very energetic person.
 - just because I don't believe people should take pleasure in that sort of thing.
 - not least because they're a good way to get rid of my aggression.
 - but they're obviously difficult to do all year round.
 - as I usually prefer being with other people.

Technique

Support main points and ideas with explanations which contain reasons, examples or doubts/reservations.

3 With a partner, ask and answer these questions. Give reasons for your answers.

- What is your favourite sport?
- Which areas of sport appeal to you?
- Which areas of sport would you avoid?

4 Decide which two words in the list cannot follow the word sports.

event ■ opponent ■ centre ■ club ■ field ■ opportunity ■ venue coverage ■ equipment ■ channel

5 The personal statements below were made by people who enjoy sport. Make the statements more abstract.

Example

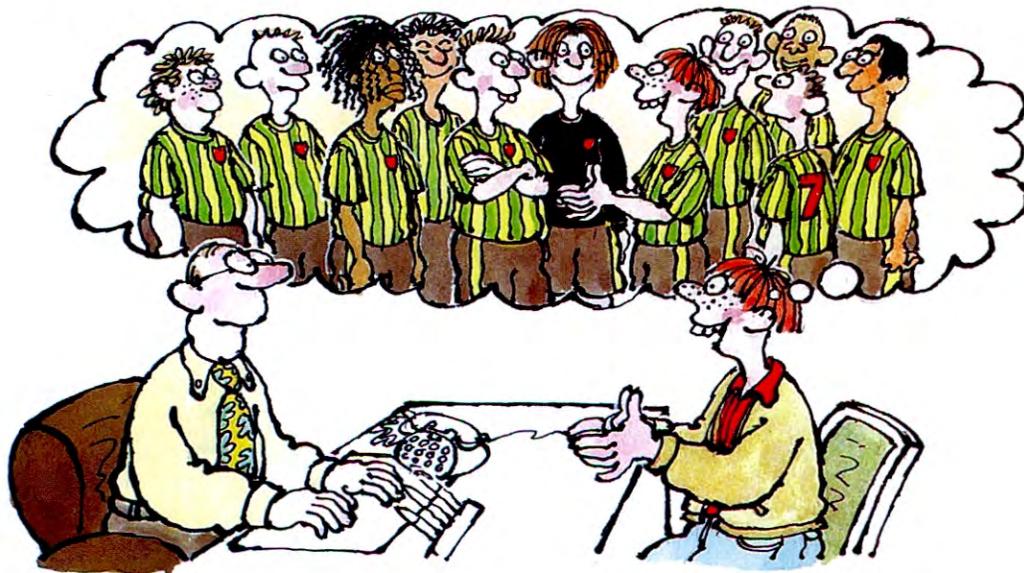

Doing sport has made me more mentally alert. → Doing sport makes people more mentally alert.

- Since I've been doing more exercise, I get fewer illnesses.
- One thing that's important is that I'm still learning new skills.
- Part of the reason I play football is to meet new people.
- After doing some exercise, I always feel more relaxed.
- Something you have to learn is how to be part of a team.
- The main reason I take part is because there's a competitive atmosphere.
- I was partly attracted to do more sport by the opportunity to be outdoors.

6 State a general benefit for each statement in exercise 5. Which three statements do you think are the most important?

7 In Speaking Part 3, you will be asked to respond to some more abstract questions. Match the benefits you identified in exercise 6 with the questions below.

- What do you think is the link between sport and a healthy population?
- What do you think is the cause of the increase in people doing sport?
- How important is the social aspect of participating in sport?

8 With a partner, ask and answer the questions in exercise 7. Give more detailed examples, using the phrases in exercise 5 and the trigger words below to help you.

if ... , then ■ for example ■ so ■ that ■ as ■ because ■ since

Technique

Visualize what you are talking about if you can.

Listening skills Predicting in tables (2)

1 The list below contains some problems which students often encounter at university. Number them from 1–6 according to how serious you think they are (1 = the most serious; 6 = the least serious).

- feeling homesick
- examination pressure
- colds and flu
- poor accommodation
- language difficulties
- student debt

2 Answer questions a–c below.

- a Which other problems can new students encounter?
- b Look at the table in exercise 3 below. Which of the student services listed could help with the problems mentioned in exercise 1?
- c If you experienced problems at university, who would you go to for help?

3 The table below comes from a table completion task. Answer questions a–c.

- a What do the numbers tell you about the order in which you will hear the information?
- b Which of the missing spaces are likely to be numbers? What kind of numbers?
- c What can you predict for the other gaps?

Speaking skills Recognizing similar questions

- 1 Read the ten ideas below on how to improve your health, and answer questions a–c.
- How many of the ideas do you personally apply in your life?
 - Are there any ideas which you do not agree with?
 - Are there any other causes of poor health that the advice does not cover?

Ten easy ways to improve your health

- Apply sun cream when outdoors on sunny days.
- Eat at least five portions of fruit and vegetables each day.
- Stop smoking.
- Avoid high-fat convenience foods.
- Control how much salt and sugar you eat.
- Drink at least 1.5 litres of water each day.
- Start a holistic form of exercise, like yoga or tai chi.
- Take vitamin supplement tablets each day.
- Avoid stress by balancing work and play.
- Do thirty minutes of moderate exercise on most days.

- 2 In Speaking Part 3 you will be asked some abstract questions about a topic. It is important to be able to understand exactly what the examiner asks so that you can answer appropriately. Which questions below would have basically the same information in the answer?

Example

a is similar to g

- In what ways is the modern diet better or worse than the diet of the past?
- What are the main causes of ill-health in the modern world?
- How can people take steps to improve their general level of health?
- In what ways are sport and health linked?
- Which factors are contributing to low levels of health in the world today?
- Are sport and health connected? If so, how?
- How is the food we eat different from the food eaten by previous generations?
- To what extent can alternative approaches to medicine have a positive effect?
- How effective is alternative medicine in helping people improve their health?
- What are the most effective ways of getting and staying healthy?

- 3 Which ideas in exercise 1 are relevant to each question in exercise 2?

Emphasizing main points

- 1  2.27 Listen to three speakers answering questions from exercise 2 on the previous page. Match each speaker with the correct question.

Speaker 1: _____

Speaker 2: _____

Speaker 3: _____

- 2  2.27 The list below gives some phrases for emphasizing your main points. Listen again to the three speakers. Match each phrase with the correct speaker.

It's mostly because of ...

I suppose the best way is ...

The main cause seems to be ...

I'd say ... is the key thing.

I suppose the most effective way is ...

It's obvious that ...

Technique

Use phrases like the ones in exercise 2 when you are sure of your opinion.

Taking time to think

- 1 The comments in a–c below were made to students preparing for Speaking Part 3. Which statement gives an accurate reflection of the test?

- a If you do not have a clear answer for every topic presented, you will get a bad mark.
- b If you do not have a clear answer to an unexpected question, you can admit this and give the best answer that you can.
- c If you do not have a clear answer to an unexpected question, you should tell the examiner and ask to move on to the next question.

- 2  2.27 Each speaker in the recording used a phrase to delay giving their answer. Listen again and write the phrases below.

Speaker 1: _____

Speaker 2: _____

Speaker 3: _____

- 3 With a partner, ask and answer the questions in exercise 2. Use the phrases for taking time to think and for emphasizing main points to help you express your own ideas. Give reasons for your answers.

Technique

Some questions may be difficult and unexpected. Take a moment to collect your thoughts and explain to the examiner that you are unsure. This will give you time to think though your score may be affected if you hesitate for too long.

4 Read the two short articles below and answer the questions.

- In what ways do they disagree with the health advice we normally receive?
- How would these articles change your answers to the questions you discussed in exercise 2 in the previous section?

Are you an exercise addict?

An occasional trip to the gym is fine, but increasing numbers of people find that exercise becomes the main organizing principle for each day. In extreme cases, some individuals have found that their exercise regime affects their job and their relationships. Nowadays everyone is very keen on healthy living, and this may become an even bigger problem in future.

An egg a day keeps the doctor away

Only a few years ago, we were being warned that there was so much cholesterol in eggs that we shouldn't eat more than two or three a week. Recently, nutritionists have changed their minds: eggs are no longer a danger food, and the cholesterol they contain has little or no effect on our health. Now we need to ask ourselves if we should really pay attention to the media about these matters.

5 With a partner, ask and answer the questions below.

- How is good health related to education and wealth?
- What dangers are associated with exercise and sport?
- Is it possible to eat healthy food that is also enjoyable?

Pronunciation: using two intonation patterns

1  2.28 Listen to the five words. Enter the intonation pattern in the box.

↘ for fall intonation

↗ for fall-rise intonation

 - First, let us consider the various _____ people hold towards enterprise in society.
- When you listen to a talk, you need to be able to follow the guidance given by the speaker. Decide the function of each of the sentences a–h above. Choose from the functions in 1–3 below.

Example

a 3

- the very beginning of a talk
- part of a sequence of points
- beginning a new sequence of points

- 4 Replace the words in the sentences in exercise 2 with words from the list below. In some cases, more than one word will be possible.

question ■ sketch ■ summary ■ problem ■ viewpoints ■ hurdle proposals ■ obstacle ■ facet ■ plan

- 5 The extract below comes from a lecturer's talk. Decide which words in the extract can be replaced by the items a–g. Some words in the extract will be used more than once.

a theories b requirement c need d topics
e influence f effect g concerns

In today's session, we are going to examine the latest thinking regarding the necessity for societies in the world to foster international cooperation on a wide range of issues. We are going to look into the dynamics of collaboration at a society level first and then see if individual organizations or indeed individuals can have any impact. So, let us now go through this list of problems on the first slide.

- 6 Match at least one solution from the list below to each international problem a–g.

flood prevention ■ trade and political partnerships ■ investing strategically in job creation sharing information and technology ■ international water preservation programme sharing ideas on how to cope with changes ■ research into management of assets

- a Water shortages are a major cause for concern.
b Some countries are too small to be heard on the international stage.
c Poverty is increasing not declining.
d Flooding is causing serious damage in both rich and poor countries.
e Demographic changes are affecting the balance within societies.
f Natural resources are becoming exhausted.
g Some countries are being left behind while other countries are advancing rapidly.

- 7 With a partner, practise asking and answering the questions below. Use the ideas in exercise 6 to help you.

- a How do you think individuals can best contribute to society?
b Do you think modern societies are in danger of being destroyed by materialism?
c What is the impact of modern business developments worldwide on societies in general?

Listening skills Paraphrasing questions

- 1 For each statement below, decide whether it reflects your attitude to life.
 - a I always wear exactly what I like. I don't care if other people think it's not fashionable.
 - b Being on time is really important. It's important to respect others' feelings by not being late.
 - c Is it always wrong to break the law? It depends. For small things it's OK, provided you don't get caught.
 - d I normally do what the boss tells me at work. Even if I disagree, I keep my head down. It's easier that way.
- 2 Answer the questions below.
 - a Would you describe yourself as a conformist or a rebel?
 - b Which group makes the biggest contribution to society: conformists or rebels?
- 3 The questions below are taken from a short-answer question task. Sentences a and b come from Section 4 in the Listening module. Read the questions and decide which question sentences a and b relate to.

Technique

Paraphrase questions in your head like this. It will help you to find possible answers.

- 1 Where was Solomon Asch born?
 - 2 Which area of interest made Asch take up psychology?
 - 3 What was the name of Asch's famous experiment?
 - 4 Who were the majority of participants in each experiment?
- a Asch was attracted to take up psychology because he was interested in
 - b It was his interest in that made Asch decide to take up psychology.

- 4 For the other questions in exercise 3, write two gapped sentences that paraphrase the question.
- 5  2.33 Listen to the first part of the recording. Answer the questions 1–4 in exercise 3. Write NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS for each answer.

Answering visual multiple-choice questions

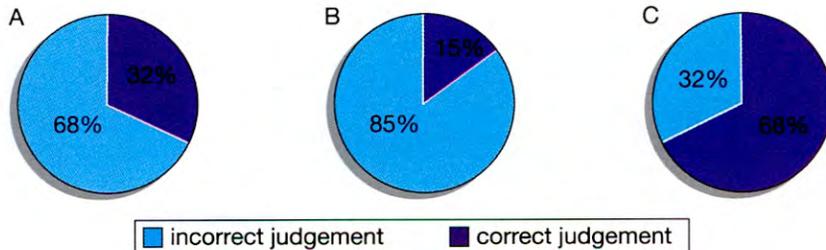

- 1 Look at question 5 (exercise 3) on the next page. Which pie chart in 5 is described by the sentence below?
The pie chart shows that 15 per cent of people gave the right answer, whereas 85 per cent gave the wrong answer.
- 2 Write brief sentences describing pie charts A and C in question 5.

- 3 Write brief sentences describing the diagrams in question 6 below. Choose words from the list below to help you.

equal ■ vertical ■ shortest ■ on the right ■ in the middle ■ longest ■ on the left ■ horizontal

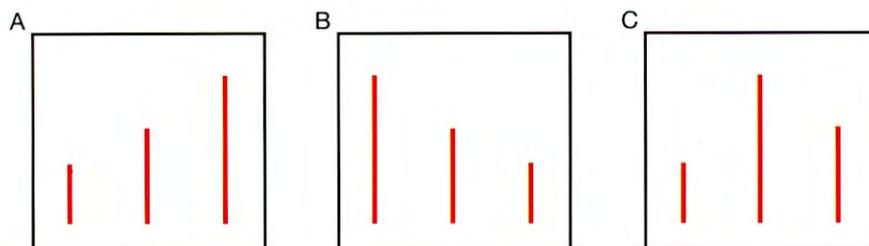

Question 5

Which pie chart shows the proportion of people who gave the incorrect judgement?

Question 6

Which diagram shows the content of the first card used in the experiment?

Technique

Predict the form of possible answers by paraphrasing what you see in the question.

- 4 2.34 Listen to the recording and answer questions 5 and 6 above and multiple-choice Questions 7–10 below.

Questions 7 and 8

Choose TWO letters A–E.

Which two features changed the results of the experiment?

- A a bigger group
- B the number of lines
- C more time
- D gender
- E privacy

Questions 9 and 10

Choose TWO letters A–E.

What reasons did subjects give for conforming to the judgement of others?

- A keep the experimenter happy
- B give a good impression
- C leave early
- D please the other participants
- E appear clever

Technique

Put the answers in any order, e.g. B, C or C, B.

Speaking skills Describing places and feelings

1 Read the texts below. What kind of place is being described in each text?

There's something about the place that just feels oppressive. When I've finished what I have to do, I just want to get out as quickly as I can. I think it might be because of the fluorescent lighting, which gives me a bit of a headache, and the air-conditioning, which drones on and on. After I've been there all week, staring at those grey walls, I feel emotionally drained. But, that's life.

It's difficult to describe what really invigorates me, just a freshness that feels good. I always go whenever I feel depressed about something and need a bit of cheering up. I love the sound of the water, which always relaxes me, and the saltiness in the air. There aren't normally many people around either. It's off the beaten track, so I always manage to get the place more or less to myself.

2 Answer the questions below about places and feelings.

- What types of place attract you? Which do you avoid? Why?
- In what ways can places affect our sense of well-being?
- How do the places we grow up in affect our character?

3 Complete the sentences below with adjectives from the list. What places do you think these are?

dull ■ busy ■ deserted ■ exciting ■ peaceful ■ wild ■ colourful ■ friendly

- I like it because it's so _____. It's nice to be where there are lots of people.
- I suppose it's quite a _____ place. There isn't much of interest to do.
- Sometimes it's completely _____. There's nobody around at all.
- With the wind and the weather, and only the birds for company, it's a really _____ place.
- I love watching the competitive spirit of the two teams. There's a really _____ atmosphere in the stadium.
- The staff are really helpful, and it's easy to meet new people over a drink. It's a very _____ place.
- What makes it easy to relax and think is how _____ it is. No noises or surprises.
- I like the flowers: all bright yellows, reds and blues. It's a very _____ experience.

4 Replace each adjective in the sentences in exercise 3 with a near synonym from the list below.

crowded ■ vibrant ■ boring ■ welcoming ■ quiet ■ sensuous ■ empty ■ remote

- 5 For each category a–e, think of a place where you go in your life to do these things.
- a a place I go to have fun
 - b a place I go to relax
 - c a place I go to work or study
 - d a place I go to eat
 - e a place I go to be alone
- 6 With a partner, describe the places you chose using the adjectives in exercises 3 and 4. Explain your choice of adjectives.

Starting your description

- 1 2.35 Listen to three people describing a place which is important to them. Decide which speaker describes the types of places a–c. Make a note of any reasons they give for their choice.

Speaker 1: _____

Speaker 2: _____

Speaker 3: _____

- a an urban place
- b a domestic space
- c a rural area

- 2 2.35 Listen again and make a note of the expressions that each speaker uses to introduce the place they have chosen.

Speaker 1: _____

Speaker 2: _____

Speaker 3: _____

- 3 Read the Speaking Part 2 task card below. Take one minute to think and make notes about your own talk on this topic, using your own experience. Then practise speaking for two minutes using your notes.

Describe a place which has influenced your life.

You should say

- where the place is
- what activities you normally do there
- what feelings you associate with the place and explain what influence the place has on your life.

Technique

Practise using where and which in your description, e.g. 'A place which is exciting and where I go very often to have fun is ...'. Which + adjective of description, where + activities you do.

Technique

Spend most time talking about the activities you do – this gives you more to say; the description of the place, using adjectives, will be quite short. In Part 2, you need to speak for 1–2 minutes.

Summing up impressions

1 In the last part of the Speaking Part 2 task card, you are normally asked to sum up your personal impressions. Match each mini-task 1–3 with the phrases a–g that you could use to answer it.

- 1 Describe a place where you spent a memorable holiday ... and explain why it is particularly memorable.
- 2 Describe an experience in which you tried something new ... and explain how you felt when you tried it.
- 3 Describe something special that you bought ... and explain why this item is special to you.

- a I remember it mainly because .../It was memorable because ...
- b It made me feel ...
- c The main reason for my reaction was ...
- d What I've learned from this is ...
- e The influence this has had on me is ...
- f This taught me an important lesson: ...
- g Its main effect on me has been ...
- h I feel attached to this ... because ...

2 Think of your answer to each of the mini-tasks in exercise 1. With a partner, give your answers, using the phrases above.

Pronunciation: using intonation in continuous speech

1 2.36 Listen to these three sentences. Decide if the intonation pattern of each sentence is a fall ↘ or a fall-rise ↘↗.

- a I was a waiter. c He was a dishwasher.
- b I worked hard. d The pay was poor.

2 2.37 Listen to this sentence and decide which part (A or B) has a fall or fall-rise intonation.

Part A: I worked hard,

Part B: although the pay was poor.

3 Link these sentence parts to make complete sentences, as spoken by a candidate in Part 1 of the Speaking Module.

	Part A		Part B
a	The pay was poor ...	1	... but some were not.
b	I got the job ...	2	... because I wanted to study more.
c	I worked long hours ...	3	... although they were not very generous.
d	Some days were fun ...	4	... because it was an unskilled job.
e	I got tips ...	5	... but made good friends.
f	I gave it up ...	6	... although I had no experience.

Technique

Use linking devices, and use their intonation to show how the parts of the sentences make a complete statement. This is continuous and connected speech. It will gain you marks for fluency.

4 2.38 Practise saying the sentences which you have made in exercise 3 using the fall-rise ↘↗ and fall ↘ intonation patterns. Listen and compare with the recording.

Customer I'm interested in buying a radio. Can you help me?

Assistant Yes, of course. As you can see, we have this analogue radio on special offer today for £29.99. They're normally £35. We've also got a much more modern range of digital radios – those are over there.

Customer Oh yes, digital radios, these are the modern ones.

Assistant Mmm, they're the new technology. This one, for example, sells at £95. The analogue radios are looking a bit old-fashioned now.

Customer But what is it that's better about the digital ones?

Assistant Well, the main advantage with the analogue ones is, of course, cheapness, but the main advantage with the digital ones is the number and variety of stations you can get – hundreds of them. All kinds of stations playing music – rock, pop, classical. Everything in fact, as well as news, current affairs, comedy ... all sorts.

Customer What about the sound quality?

Assistant The quality is very good. Under certain circumstances, you can get amazing sound quality with analogue, but this is usually with very expensive radios which would normally be part of a hi-fi sound system – we have lots of those on the third floor if you're interested. The second great thing about digital is clarity: you get no interference, well, less interference than with analogue. You get a very clear and clean sound.

Customer Well, I want a radio for the flat I share with three other friends of mine.

Assistant In that case, you want something that will last. The analogues come with a one-year guarantee but the digitals have a two-year guarantee which is extendable to three years if you pay an extra £26. The main disadvantage with analogue is that it will be turned off in a few years – we don't know exactly when, but sometime.

Customer But what about the batteries? I've heard that they use a lot of batteries.

Assistant That is probably the one disadvantage of the digital radios. The battery life is not very long, but they all come with rechargeable batteries, which really solves the problem.

Assistant So, how would you like to pay?

Customer Er, cash?

Assistant Do you have a Robson's Store Card?

Customer I think I might do. Here we are.

Assistant Oh my goodness, I haven't seen one of those for a long time. Those are the old ValueCards. Now you can get a SuperValue Card, which is even better value.

Customer Really? I don't know what to do.

Assistant Well, I can change you onto a SuperValue Card if you want. With the SuperValue Card you get double the standard number of points, and your free credit period is longer. With your old card you get one month's free credit, but you can get three months' free credit with the new card. The interest rate is a bit higher, at 22.5 per cent rather than 18.5 per cent, but if you're careful you don't have to pay interest at all.

Customer Well, I'm not sure about that – it seems better in some ways. Can I continue to use my old card?

Assistant You certainly can, until they withdraw them, which I'm sure they will before too long. But with the SuperValue Card there are special cardholder-only days – two per month, compared with one per month with the old card.

Customer I see. My old card gave me free delivery, too.

Assistant That's right, free delivery within twenty miles. The SuperValue Card gives you free delivery up to 50 miles.

Customer That sounds good. I think the old card was free, too.

Assistant Mmm, with the SuperValue card there is an initial fee of just £12, and then it's very good value.

Customer I think I'll pay cash.

Assistant Very good, madam.

Candidate OK.

Examiner Could you tell me something about where you live?

Candidate Yes. I used to live in Switzerland but I've recently moved to the UK. Now I live in Weybridge.

Examiner What sort of place is that?

Candidate It's a large, busy place. It's near London. It has got lots and lots of people and houses – it's typical of a London suburb.

Examiner Is there anything you particularly like about it?

Candidate The great thing about Weybridge is the facilities. You've got everything you need: shops, buses and trains, cinemas, pubs and restaurants, entertainment. You never need to leave it! You've got all you want!

Examiner I see. And what kind of jobs do people do there?

Candidate All kinds. I suppose mostly people work in offices, for big companies. Some people work in shops. There are a lot of high tech companies around there.

Examiner Thank you. Now let's talk about what you do ...

Librarian Good morning. My name is Mandy and I am going to tell you a little about the John R Jones Memorial Library here at Blackwater College. We regard the library as a gateway to the resources that you as students at the College may need. The majority of you are full-time students – you may find you spend a lot of time here.

Even those of you who are part-time students will no doubt require the services too. I hope that by the end of this short talk you will know the services the library has to offer, including the website, and how to get any further help you may need. Sorry, I forgot there may be a few distance learners on the tour today. I'll explain about the online facilities and borrowing by post scheme a little later on. This is the main site of the library, but we also have the Rivergate building and the Fieldhouse Library. The Rivergate building houses the geography resources, that is the book collection and the journal collection, as well as the map collection. The hours and days of opening of the Rivergate collection are the same as this building except that it's closed on Christmas Day and New Year's Day. The Fieldhouse Library contains a specialist collection of local history and if you want to visit it you will need to make an appointment. Those two facilities are the only exceptions to the rule that all the Blackwater College libraries are open 24 hours a day, seven days a week, 365 days a year. However, to gain access to the facilities you must have your ID card – no ID card, no entry. We have heard all the stories and excuses and we don't accept any of them. Just remember your ID card!

Questions 16–20

- 16 Economics: ... we are currently moving the Economics collection here ...
- 17 French Literature: ... we will be moving the French Literature collection into this building next week
- 18 new restaurant: ... we are still building the new restaurant (Maximum of 2 words allowed in this answer)
- 19 150: We have recently updated 150 computer stations ...
- 20 national newspapers: ... there is a wide range of national newspapers available from the librarians on request.

Script

Librarian Now, I must apologize for the mess you can see around you today. Libraries should be quiet places, but unfortunately this is not currently the case here. This new building has been here for only two months, and as a result we have not quite finished moving in! So far, we have moved most of the book and journal collections from the old library into this new building. There are two exceptions: we are currently moving the Economics collection here, which should be installed by tomorrow, and we will be moving the French Literature collection into this building next week. But, as you can see, we are still building the new restaurant. We will finish it, we hope, very shortly. We have finished the café, however, and students can use it during the library opening hours. We have recently updated 150 computer stations and we will be adding another one hundred shortly, so that there will be plenty for everybody soon. Very shortly this library will be one of the finest in this part of the country. Don't forget that the library isn't just about academic books. In addition to the books and journals there is a wide range of national newspapers available from the librarians on request. I'd like to mention the different ways you can get help in using our resources. Don't forget our website at www.mlbc.ac.uk. There you can access the full catalogues, and also journals if you have your password and ID number. Now, any questions?

Lecturer Good morning, everybody. I'd like to begin this term's lectures with a discussion of the various sub-disciplines in history. Before I do that though, can I refer you to the handout you picked up on the way in? It deals with two general topics. The first is 'Why study history?' and the second is 'What is history?'. Neither of these questions has an easy answer. In fact, people have been asking these questions for as long as history has been studied. However, as you are mostly new students to this subject – and we have some students of economics with us also – I feel you should have some background to these basic questions. Anyway, it's all in the handout. I might add that for me personally, the most important reason for studying history is that I find it exciting. Our ancestors can remain, if we want them to, a mystery, a closed book, a blackness that we never see into. Or, we can come to know what motivated them and discover how that led to the world we live in today.

10 M: ... examples of kinds of history which ... differ from the orthodox forms. ... Ethnic history is a present-day concern ...

Script

Lecturer You who have chosen to pursue the study of history are very fortunate. This is a time when we can talk not just about history but histories. Traditionally, history was seen as one subject and the subject matter was clear. It was about kings and queens and wars. Additionally, it was about states and empires or groups of states. This is what we now call political history. The sub-topics were the parts of the world – for example, the history of China or of France. History has moved on somewhat, and we can learn a lot about current views of history by looking at the proposed lecture topics in our leading universities. In fact, you'll see that even the simplest definition of history – that it is about what happened in the past – is up for grabs. Some of the more, how shall I put it, progressive areas of study are as much about what should happen in the future. One example of this is the field of post-modern history. Likewise, feminist history looks at the past to make sure the future will be different, and it uses the past to assist in its efforts to make the future as it wants it to be. Somewhere in the middle of these two extremes lie a range of areas of study which have developed over the modern period, replacing the traditional idea of political history. These are by now mostly well established. You can study social history or economic history. Social history asks about ordinary people and their lives. Not just their daily lives but their contribution to changes in our society. Ordinary people have desires and wishes which they try to put into effect and this has a massive impact on social development, which was not fully understood in the classical study of history. By the way, one area of conventional history which I forgot to mention, but which has had a resurgence of interest in recent years, is the area of military history. This was, of course, of great practical use in more violent times and unfortunately has become of increasing use and interest – academically and practically – in our own times. By the way, there is a new series of lectures on military history in our department – as if to demonstrate the truth of what I have just said. Ethnic and multi-cultural history are further examples of kinds of history which, like social history, differ from the orthodox forms. Ethnic history is a present-day concern which concentrates on the value systems and beliefs of a people – usually a minority people – which were ignored in the rapid forward march of the rich and powerful nations and states. How various ethnic groups live together and how their traditions change and develop is the subject of its contemporary cousin, multi-cultural history. In summary, as I said, you are fortunate to have such a wide choice of things to study in the fields of history. Choose wisely. And finally, it only remains for me to wish you good luck in your studies.

Anne Hello Tom!

Tom Hello Anne!

Anne What have you been doing?

Tom Oh, just sitting around, catching up with some reading.

Anne I've had a great time. You know we're doing this assignment on ... what is it?

Tom 'Museums – their costs and benefits.'

Anne That's right. Well, I've been to the Sandgate Museum. It was really good. These local museums are really interesting because they connect people with the history of one special place. We all know about kings and emperors and battles and wars, but local museums tell us about the everyday lives of ordinary people and that's why they are so important.

Tom I'm not so sure about that. I think they are of interest but they're so small that they can't give a true picture of things. They do their best.

Anne I don't really agree. They do give a true picture, but perhaps not a full picture. It's the truth but not the whole truth.

Tom I think the size is the number one problem. Because they're small and local they attract few visitors. That's why they have so little money. And because they have little money they can't buy or maintain many really interesting exhibits. As a result, the shop is almost as big as the museum to try to raise money by selling souvenirs, postcards, sweets, and so on.

Anne I think they find it difficult, but not impossible. And don't forget, they get a lot of their exhibits free from local people. There was this boat, for example, that was fantastic!

Tom Really? What was that?

Anne There was a massive fishing boat, a real one, about a hundred years old, and you could walk on it, and get the feeling of what fishing in those days was really like.

Tom Mmm, sounds quite good. But I've always found that these kinds of museums are a bit dingy. For example, the display cabinets are so dark that you can hardly see the exhibits, and the labels are sometimes difficult to read ...

Questions 26–30

26 B Tom: ... that should come from the local authority ...

27 C Tom: ... Why? ... They could survive from donations ...

28 A Tom: ... The state should spend more on science museums ...

29 C Anne: ... a sort of museum which should not get public funds is the craft museum.
Tom: ... Yes ...

30 B Tom: ... But a working farm is a different thing again ... That's the sort of thing that the local government should be spending its money on.

Script

Anne So coming back to our assignment. What we've got to decide is whether these museums should be funded by the government or just by local people.

Tom I think it depends entirely on what kind of museum it is.

Anne How do you mean?

Tom Well, take local history museums. They're small so they won't survive without financial support. But that should come from the local authority, since only people in that area or tourists will visit it.

Anne I agree, but what about big natural history museums? Surely they should get money from the central government.

Tom Why? Children who want to learn about nature can go out into the countryside with their schoolteachers. They could survive from donations, and they get loads of visitors anyway. The state should spend more on science museums, since not enough people are studying science these days.

Anne I'm not so sure. But I do think a sort of museum which should not get public funds is the craft museum.

Tom Yes, like museums of cotton weaving.

Anne Yeah, which are of interest to only a very small number of people, and they should pay for it.

Tom I agree. But a working farm is a different thing again. That's something from all of our pasts and so it's important to the local community. Kids can learn a lot too. That's the sort of thing that the local government should be spending its money on.

Anne Yes, I agree. Well, I think we've got plenty of ideas for our assignment.

Phrases for linear ordering could occur at any stage, although firstly and finally are more restricted to the beginning and end. Phrases for conditionals would occur at question points where two alternatives are available. Phrases for cause and effect are less likely in this flow chart, but may be common in flow charts that detail natural processes.

- Assistant Good morning, madam. Can I help you?
- Customer Yes, please. I bought this breadmaking machine from you quite a while ago and it doesn't work.
- Assistant I see. That's unusual. These breadmakers are usually very reliable. You didn't overfill it, did you? Or put too much water in the mix? Those are two reasons for malfunction we often hear of.
- Customer No. Certainly not. I had it working for quite a while and then it stopped working. It doesn't do anything now.
- Assistant I see. That sounds like a fault in the machine.
- Customer Yes. I wonder if you can do anything about it for me.
- Assistant Well, that depends. If it is inside the guarantee period we can help you. Otherwise, it will be more difficult.
- Customer Let me see. I have the receipt here. I bought it in – it was some time ago – the receipt says, ... in February last year.
- Assistant February. Well, unfortunately that means it is outside the warranty period. In that case, I'll get you a form which you can fill in and we'll see what we can do.
- Customer Well, what can you do, do you think?
- Assistant Well, as I say, if you fill in this form, we can send away the breadmaker to be mended. It goes off to a repair centre.
- Customer Oh good. What happens then?
- Assistant Then, we don't get an exact costing, but we will get back an estimate of how much it will cost and how long it will take.
- Customer I see. And do you think it will be expensive?
- Assistant Well, it won't be cheap. There will be labour and parts to think about and also the postage and packing costs.

Customer And we don't know how much they will be?

Assistant Not yet. But when you get the estimate, you've got two options, obviously. If you agree, you can go ahead. Or if you don't, you can say, 'No, it's too expensive'. It's your decision entirely whether you agree.

Customer And if I go ahead?

Assistant Then we arrange the repair. We don't have much stock room, so when it is done what we'll have to do is arrange a time for you to collect it from us.

Customer All right, that's what I'll do.

Assistant Just give me the receipt.

Customer Here you are.

Assistant Just a minute, madam. I thought you said you bought the breadmaker in February.

Customer That's right. Here is the date. Two – twelve – thirteen Assistant I think there's some mistake. In the UK, two twelve thirteen is the second of December two thousand and thirteen.

Customer Oh, of course. How stupid of me! Of course it is!

Assistant So it's inside the warranty period.

Customer Oh great.

Assistant That's right. That's much easier.

Customer So, what can you do now?

Assistant Very simple. You fill in this form, we replace the machine and return it to your home address within three days.

Customer Well, that's excellent.

Speaker 3: 2, To what extent is shopping a form of relaxation?

Speaker 1 I suppose that the main difference is that it's set up to be a lot more convenient. It's easy to go and park up at a supermarket and get all your shopping in one go. I know a lot of people don't approve of that. Nevertheless, from my point of view, it's a really good thing. I can save time.

Speaker 2 To my mind, we worry far too much these days about what things are wrapped in. It's all about marketing really. Some customers expect to buy their toothpaste tube in a box, but what's the point? It seems to me that we need to change attitudes about this.

Speaker 3 Well, from my point of view, it's completely the opposite. It just gets me stressed. But I know for a lot of people it's a form of leisure activity. They'd rather wander round a shopping centre than go to a park or the beach. Personally, I think it's a really odd attitude.

Lecturer I'm going to begin my lecture today with a look at Product Life Cycles. Now, as we go through the Product Life Cycle I'll be trying to raise some issues which are important with regard to each phase of the cycle. I won't have all the answers for you this morning. This one of the lecture series is just to get you started and – I hope – interested. Let's start with the first phase of the cycle, that of Product Design. This is really the most important part of the cycle. We often talk as if it is consumers who are responsible for recycling – and so they are – but in reality the major responsibility must be borne by designers. They can design products where recycling is easy and cheap, or difficult and expensive. In the latter case, the likelihood is that recycling – though technically feasible – will not, in fact, take place. Now don't jump ahead, because the second stage is not Product Manufacturing, but rather that of Materials Acquisition. This is the activity we do when we mine coal or other minerals such as gold or iron or copper. In addition to mining, there is harvesting, which includes the cutting down of trees as a first step in the making of furniture or paper, or fishing. These activities have costs which are not only monetary: pollution is one of the extra costs. We have also to think whether the resources we use are renewable – such as trees – or not – such as coal and other minerals. The third stage is not manufacturing either. It is Materials Processing. This is where we take the raw materials and use energy to change them into a form that can be used in manufacturing. For example, trees must be turned into paper, or oil into plastic. The cotton plants that grow in the fields must be turned into cloth. All of these activities require the use of chemical processes and, as with all chemical processes, waste is produced – often of a dangerous kind. And now we come to the Manufacturing stage. This is usually the most expensive in terms of cost and energy and waste. The wastes are often those that contribute to global climate change. For example, we make 41 billion glass containers (mostly bottles) each year and we throw most of them away: a lot of manufacturing seems unnecessary if we could only organize things better. And this could mean greater profits for the manufacturing companies, too. Stage five is Packaging. Many products are packed in paper or plastic which themselves, of course, have their own processes and costs. Excessive packaging is often criticized, but it must be remembered that packaging serves a purpose – often more than one purpose – such as maintaining freshness and hygiene, as well as providing information. In our globalized world, we must never forget the next stage, which is Distribution. This is the stage where transportation and energy play a big part. Lorries, trucks, trains, planes and ships all use up the precious stocks of oil and, as we know, generate greenhouse gases which, as we hear again and again, contribute to climate change. Stage seven is the point of it all: using the product. Looking after products, using them in the recommended ways, timely repair and maintenance, all reduce the need for early replacement and reduce the number of products in landfill sites. We should not encourage the purchase of single use products, that is, products which are designed for use on one occasion only, and then to be thrown away and replaced. I'm going to skip a stage for a moment and move straight on to the final stage which is Disposal – putting the product in the bin. This is the end of the life of the product and we lose it completely. It may have only a little value but it does have a value even at this stage of its life, even in fact when it's actually in the landfill site. Now, I missed out one stage. This is a cycle within a cycle. That is, within the life cycle of the product there can be a closed loop cycle which can extract more value from the product. This is the reuse and recycle loop. It is a closed loop because, in theory, it can continue forever, though in practice of course, this is not possible. Recycling products means that they can be used to make more of the same product – CDs, bottles, books – or that they can be used to make different ones. For example, one pound of recycled paper can make six cereal boxes. And if we recycled all our newspapers, there could be a saving of 40,000 trees a day! Now, with this approach to the life cycle of a product in mind, we can go on to consider Life Cycle Analysis ...

Questions 36–40

- 36 information: ... as well as providing information.
 37 single use: We should not encourage the purchase of single use products ...
 38 value: ... it does have a value even at this stage of its life, even in fact when it's actually in the landfill site.
 39 cereal boxes: ... one pound of recycled paper can make six cereal boxes.
 40 saving ... there could be a saving of 40,000 trees a day.

Bill It was packed! There simply aren't enough seats in Theatre 4 – there were people on the stairs, people in the aisles – I don't imagine everybody was able to get in.

Chloe Was Jack with you?

Bill No, of course not. I saw him with a pile of journals in the library as I walked past. You haven't seen him because you've been here in the kitchen drinking coffee all morning whereas he's been studying hard.

Chloe Not me! I've been in my bedroom reading for my assignment on education in the classical world – very interesting. It was easier than I expected. I should have been at the gym training for my next race, but that'll have to wait. And did you find your first lecture interesting?

Bill Absolutely fascinating! We talked about this experiment: if you show a child a litre of water in a bucket and show him a litre of water in a tall container, he always thinks the higher, taller but narrower container has more water in it.

Chloe Hold on, what do you show him?

Bill Right. You show him two things: a bucket ... with a litre of water in it. And also, a tall, glass, vase-like thing or any tall container – this also has a litre of water in it. Now, he will say that the tall thing has more in it than the short fat thing, that is, the bucket. And all children will say this, that is, up to about five years of age. You can then actually pour a litre of water from the bucket into the taller, narrower container and the child will still say that the tall container contains more water – even though he has just seen the water come out of the bucket!

Chloe And what's the point of that? Is it about measurement?

Bill No, it showed how children are quite unable to think logically. It's connected with my assignment. It's about cognitive development of young children over time. That's to say it's about how they think. But didn't you do that assignment last year?

Chloe No, I didn't. You see, I missed out on the first year when I changed subject.

Bill Lucky you.

Chloe I'm not so sure. I've missed out on a lot of the basic stuff like that, and I will have to catch up in my own time. So I'm relying on you!

Bill Oh yes, I remember. What did you study before you changed?

Chloe I studied law.

Bill Why didn't you continue?

Chloe I found some of the subjects interesting enough – in fact, the criminal area was fascinating in general. But a lot of the law is very technical. It's full of little details, which can be very difficult to understand. And I've got a terrible memory too. I could never get all the rules and exceptions into my head. My number one hate really was international trade which was a minefield of rules and exceptions – in fact I think it was a complete nightmare!

Bill But law is such a popular subject – lots of people would like to study it.

Chloe I'm sure they would, but they often don't realize that it's very book-based. You spend most of your time reading about famous cases sitting in a stuffy library and very occasionally you get out – to a lecture, or maybe a seminar!

Bill What do you find that's better about psychology?

Chloe Most of all I like the experimental psychology we have to study. This involves doing something, so it's practical, and with any luck you can make a small – OK very small – contribution to knowledge. And it's so useful in many careers, for example, business, commerce, education ...

Bill Law is too, you know.

Chloe Yes, but the training is so long. You have to spend at least another two years on a professional practice course before you can start working. No, I'm happy with psychology.

Bill Well, as a psychology student, too, I must say I agree with absolutely everything you've said, of course ...

I can remember a teacher called Miss Nicholls really well. She was a teacher I had when I was about six years old. She taught all subjects, not anything in particular. Physically, she was quite ordinary: she was about average height, thin, and with grey hair in a bun. She looked how you would expect for a person of her age – I would say she was about 50 years old. Character-wise, she was quick and precise. She was quick in all her movements, walking and speaking.

And she spoke very precisely. She was a 'yes or no' kind of person. Of course, before I moved into her class I was terrified of her. Now, many people have a rough exterior and a soft inside, but the extraordinary thing about Miss Nicholls was that she really did have a heart of gold. I'm sure I'll never forget her because she taught me how to be firm but kind.

Questions 31–35

31 B: ... seven weeks of term time plus two weeks of vacation.

32 B: ...the very long summer holiday would be reduced in length.

33 B: On average, children's test scores were three weeks lower than when they left school ...

34 B: ... disadvantaged children showed even greater losses in reading skills.

35 A: This is certainly an improvement on the traditional system ...

Script

Lecturer So, having seen that the six-term system has passed the test of cost-effectiveness, we can move on to the educational aspects of this arrangement. Firstly, all the terms would be approximately the same length. Instead of terms of up to thirteen weeks, which we have now, there could be a repeating pattern of seven weeks of term time plus two weeks of vacation. This would be repeated six times per year. How does this affect the effectiveness of the educational provision? The most noticeable result would be that the very long summer holiday would be reduced in length. This by-product of the six-term system could be beneficial. There is plenty of evidence of huge learning loss by pupils during the summer holidays. By learning loss, we mean the amount that pupils forget – or lose – during a holiday break. Ashley carried out a number of analyses which showed this conclusively. He investigated 39 studies examining the effects of summer holidays on standardized test scores. His analyses indicated that summer learning loss equalled two weeks to seven weeks of instruction. On average, children's test scores were three weeks lower than when they left school in the previous term. He also found differences in the learning-loss effect according to subject. The subjects he analysed were reading, writing and maths, and he found that the effect was greatest in maths and reading. Furthermore, although all social groups experienced roughly similar learning-loss in the field of maths, the studies found that disadvantaged children showed even greater losses in reading skills. So the problem of learning-loss in traditional schools is clear. However, the results of studies into the six-term system and learning loss are ambiguous. Marchmont found that pupils in six-term schools maintained their test scores after the shorter holiday period. This is certainly an improvement on the traditional system where, as we have seen, pupils perform worse after the summer break. Benson, however, found no differences between those in traditional schools and on the six-term schedule. It would seem reasonable that if long holidays result in learning-loss, then shorter holidays should result in less learning-loss. So we await the outcome of further studies. Historically, of course, everyone knows the reason for our system of three terms per year. In days when agriculture was of much greater importance in our working lives, it was essential that the children helped with the harvest. Later on this changed and more people moved into the towns, but then there was a new problem. Before air-conditioning, it was very impractical to try to teach children in the summer months. Nowadays, that's no longer a barrier. One way of providing something different is the summer school. Here there is a completely different kind of educational provision. Cooper and others investigated 93 summer schools and the results they achieved. They all had a positive effect on learning. Most summer schools, of course, have small classes and class size was shown to have a positive effect. Additionally, summer school children usually benefit from a great deal of parental support – not least because payment of fees is involved – and this, as so often, was shown to produce very good outcomes. Results were most impressive in maths in general.

Possible answers

a It is important for a youth worker to be articulate so that they can communicate effectively with young people. Being full of energy is an asset as the job can be tiring, as is being highly-motivated. Being experienced would help the youth worker to relate to a youth's situation. Being responsible is a suitable attribute as the youth worker will know what boundaries to set between him/herself and the young people they are working with. Being prepared to learn is perhaps less important.

b It would probably suit a younger person more, though an older person could also be suitable. Most young people would relate more to someone closer to their age. However, an older person would bring experience.

Manageress Good morning everybody.

I'd like to welcome you to the festival.

My name is Sandy and I'm the general manager of Castle Music Events and I just want to take a moment to mention a few things to you before you go and have your detailed briefings in your work groups. You all have a copy of the plan of the festival grounds. Now most things are obvious, but I'd like to point out first the visitor toilets here along the side of the main area. Kindly do not use these yourselves – your own facilities, the staff toilets, are beside the food tent. Also, there are public telephones behind the stage. I mention these two things because they are places that visitors often ask for. For yourselves, one of the most important places is the staff meeting point. This is new this year and the only thing to remember is that it exists and that when you refer to a meeting point between yourselves you need to make clear which one you are talking about. The staff meeting point is between Campsite 1 and the disabled viewing area. This is not marked on the general maps but it is marked on the maps you've got there. The visitors' meeting point is, as you can see, in the centre of the main area, between the food tent and the entrance. Now another important facility is the first aid tent. This is a big round tent so you can't miss it. It's on the right-hand side of the entrance – again, as you come in. There are many other first aid facilities all over the festival site. In fact, there is a first aid box in every tent and sales point, but this is the central point. Finally, I wanted to mention the security on the site. Every year the festival gets bigger and bigger and so every year we have to increase the security arrangements. We have a number of small security offices, one being near the entrance, but the main security office is opposite the disabled viewing area – it's next to the bar so that the officers can keep an eye on what's going on there. And of course, in that office there is a full supply of first aid equipment, too. And don't forget, those of you who can't wait till you get your pay at the end of the festival there are some cash machines in the wall of the bar.

Manageress I do hope you'll enjoy working with us this year. It's always good to see some of last year's faces back with us again. We hope this year to put on an even better festival than before. The first year we put on a festival we called it the Mountain View Pop Concert. And it was a pop concert rather than a festival. We held it inside the castle and you could see the mountains in the background. It was very small and personal. Then we held it in front of the castle, with the castle in the background and then we started calling it the Castle Festival. Now, this year we have moved further away into the fields. The advantage is that the castle and the mountains are both there in the distance, but we have as much space as we want in the fields. The only problem with the fields is that sheep use the fields during the spring months and they leave little messages for us all over the place. So please be careful and encourage the visitors to be careful, too. Now it just remains for me to let you know the times of your detailed briefings which are as follows. And I'm telling you these as they are not – I repeat not – as written down on your welcome letters. Those of you who are working on the Children's Zone, your meeting is at 2 p.m. in Campsite 2. Those of you on the security team need to meet behind the stage at 3.15 p.m. For the people on first aid, please do not meet in the first aid tent – there will not be enough room – but meet at the entrance gates at 4 p.m. Finally, we need everybody, and I do mean everybody, on duty on Monday morning at 8 a.m. for the final clean-up. I'd like to remind you that Monday is the final day of work, not the Sunday. People not coming to the final day will lose 50 per cent of their pay. The meeting place for that is Campsite 1. Now, good luck and let's make this the best festival ever!

Speaker 1 There are pros and cons with taking a job while studying. On the one hand, you earn money, which is useful. On the other, the job interferes with your study, which is a disadvantage. On balance, I'd prefer not to do a job, but I have to.

Speaker 2 I've been a nurse for twenty years. The disadvantage with nursing is that it is hard work and the pay is not great, but the great advantage is that I can choose my hours and work as many – or as few – as I want. So, overall, I'm happy to continue working.

Speaker 3 The plus is, of course, the wages you can earn, although students often don't earn a lot. Another advantage is the work experience, which sometimes can be very useful – meeting the right people and so on. The minus is the time you have to spend working instead of studying. Weighing everything up, I'd say 'Only work if you have to'.

I like it here. The tutors are open-minded and easy-going. One or two of them are world-famous. I have to do a thousand-word essay every fortnight and there is an end-of-year exam. The campus-based accommodation is very good, although it's not cheap. Internet connection is provided, and there's a user-friendly student intranet. The town is densely-populated and has lots of nightlife. Life is worry-free here. I must go now — I've got an hour-long seminar to prepare for.

Questions 1–3

- 1 G
- 2 F
- 3 D

Script

Accommodation officer Well, you have left things a bit late. Have you tried looking for somewhere in Newbridge?

Student Newbridge? No, I haven't. I've never heard of Newbridge.

Officer Well, let me show you — I've got a map here. Here's where everything is. You come into Newbridge over the bridge and the main road in front of you is, surprisingly enough, the High Street. This is one of the main streets.

Student Mmm ...

Officer And branching off to the left, you can see there, is West Street — that is another busy part of town.

Student I see.

Officer Now, as I was saying, here is the High Street and here is West Street going left. Now if you go along West Street, the first place you come to on your right is the supermarket — it's not a very big one but it's got most things you're likely to need. Next to it, there's the old town hall — I say the old town hall because it is about a hundred years old, but it will soon make way for a car park, I'm afraid. I suppose the car is king. Now, opposite the supermarket is the railway station. You can get very frequent buses and trains from here in to the university. And next to that is the sports centre — it's a brand new one and was built on the site of some tennis courts, so that's progress. It's got everything the keen sportsperson like yourself might require. Now that's the centre of town and I want to point out to you the buildings opposite the supermarket, but on the other side of London Road. There are two buildings there: the one further away from the High Street is called The Heights and the one nearer the High Street is called The Towers.

Student What are they?

Officer They are where you could find a flat. One of them — The Heights — has a number of flats for rent at the moment.

Student Oh good.

Questions 4–8

4 A: ... apply to The Newbridge Accommodation Agency ...

5 C: ... you can ring the owner directly ...

6 B: Leave it with me and I'll look into it for you ...

7 C: ... I suggest you just answer the advert here in the newspaper which the owner has obviously put in.

8 A: ... I would have to advise you to go through the agency ...

Questions 9 and 10

9 clothing factories: They were clothing factories and everyone worked in them ...

10 housing estates: There are new housing estates on the edge of the town but they are mostly occupied by young families, and there isn't much student accommodation there.

Script

Officer Now the first one is Flat 4. That's a nice flat with a balcony and you need to apply to The Newbridge Accommodation Agency to ask about that one. You'll find their number in the phone book. Number 6 is another nice one which has been empty for a while and you can ring the owner directly, I think ... yes, I've got her number written here — there it is.

Student Right, thank you.

Officer Good. Now, number 8 is a re-advertisement —

Student What do you mean?

Officer Well, it did have a tenant, but now it is for rent again, so I'd like to ask about that one. Leave it with me and I'll look into it for you, then we can talk about it when I've got more information.

Student OK ... are there others in this block?

Officer Yes, there's number 10, now this one's a bit strange. It's advertised with an agency as well as privately in the local paper. Normally, if it's advertised through an agency, you shouldn't really go behind the agency and go directly to the owner, but on this occasion I suggest you just answer the advert here in the newspaper which the owner has obviously put in.

Student OK.

Officer Finally, there is number 14. This is with the Newstart Agency — this is an agency started by the girl who was my assistant here and she left to make money for herself, so she's not my favourite person, but I'm afraid I would have to advise you to go through the agency anyway. Again, their number is in the phone book. All right, is that something for you to be starting with?

Student That's great. But what kind of place is Newbridge?

Officer It's a nice place. It was developed about a hundred years ago, really for people who worked in the factories around there. They were clothing factories and everyone worked in them — men, women, boys and girls. Then when the factories closed down things got very difficult for the town – there was a huge amount of unemployment, until a few years ago when, in the telecoms boom, a company making mobile phones started up – I think your phone was made in Newbridge – and now this company employs most of the people in the town. There are new housing estates on the edge of the town but they are mostly occupied by young families, and there isn't much student accommodation there. Most flats and so on are in the centre.

Student That sounds good.

Officer Well, let me know how you get on.

Student Yes, of course. Thank you. Bye.

Officer Bye.

Script

Lecturer Having referred briefly to the general definition of culture, I want to move on to an example of cultural research in action – a real example of what researchers into culture are doing. This is a study done in 2004 into the 'global teenager hypothesis'. Now the global teenager hypothesis states that the values and attitudes of teenagers all over the world have become very similar, that teenagers are part of a global culture, rather than a national or a regional one. This study investigated the subject of materialism in three different cultures. It asked if teenagers' attitudes to materialism were similar or different in those three cultures. I'd like to go through the main points of this study because I think it demonstrates the interest and usefulness of this kind of research. The research took a sample of 556 high school students of between fourteen and seventeen years of age from three countries. The three countries – being also three differing cultures – were China, Japan and the USA. The high schools were in medium-sized cities and the students came from middle-class areas. There were 172 respondents from China, 168 from Japan and 216 from the USA. The students were asked to reply to a seven-statement questionnaire. They were asked to say if they agreed or disagreed with the statements. The questionnaire was filled in during the students' regular class time. I'll give you some examples of the statements in the questionnaire. And by the way, if you want to look into this in further detail – I've got the reference here, let me see, oh yes, it's The International Journal of Consumer Studies, Volume 28, Number 4, of September 2004. The first statement was: it's really true that money can make you happy. Respondents were asked – as they were asked about all the statements – to give their answer on a scale of one to seven. One on the scale indicated 'I strongly disagree'; four on the scale was neutral and seven on the scale was 'I strongly agree'. The second statement was: my dream in life is to be able to own expensive things. And the fifth was: having the right possessions is the most important thing in life. Let's look at some of the results. With regard to the first statement, it was the Japanese teenagers who agreed most strongly that money could make you happy. The Americans were second and the Chinese agreed least. However, regarding one's life dream being to own expensive things, it was American teenagers who agreed most strongly with this and the Chinese who agreed least. As regards the fifth statement – about owning the right things – the Americans agreed less strongly than the other two groups. It was the Chinese who agreed most strongly with this statement. I haven't been able to analyse all aspects of the study in this lecture, but it does suggest that the hypothesis is not supported by the data. It may be that the culture of the USA is more individualistic, whereas the Chinese culture is more collectivist or communitarian. However, it does not seem to support the global teenager hypothesis. As always, this is something on which we need to carry out more research.

Charlotte I like listening to music and going to the cinema, but my favourite thing of all is going to the theatre.
Interviewer Why do you like that best?
Charlotte What attracts me most is that it's live. It's that these people have come to this place, on this day to perform for us. That's the great thing about theatre.

2

Interviewer What do you like doing in your free time, Deborah?

Deborah I enjoy being outdoors, but best of all, I like gardening.

Interviewer Gardening?

Deborah Yes. One thing I like about gardening is that I can do it at home. And the other thing is that I can give a lot, or a little time to it. Also, I can do it for fun or competitively – the thing I like most is growing vegetables and entering them in competitions. But some years, I only have a little time and then I do it for fun, for enjoyment only.

3

Interviewer What do you like doing in your free time, Edward?

Edward I like sports in general. I find them relaxing. Best of all, I like rugby.

Script

Tutor Come in, sit down. Good to see you.
Denis, Emily Hello.
Tutor Now, this assignment, the best thing we can do, I think, is to think how we can approach it. The main point is to investigate television, but not what's happened in the past.

Emily I was thinking that it would be necessary to go over the new media first and then ...
Tutor Yes, that's a way to make a start, but you need to do that quite briefly ...
Emily But it's quite a complex topic ...
Tutor I agree, but the emphasis must be on the future development of television as a cultural phenomenon.
Emily Yes. I've been reading the talk by Ashley Highfield.
Tutor All right, and what do you take from that, what are the things that are competing with television?
Emily Well, obviously the personal computer and the Internet, but also the smartphone. And with the smartphone, there is the use of social media which television does not deal with at all.
Tutor Good, now, what's the problem with television in this new age?
Emily Well, first, television does not deal with the social media in any way, obviously. And it has fixed schedules for viewing ...
Tutor ... although this is changing ...
Emily ... yes. And, of course, people just love their smartphones!
Tutor Of course. But is there any way in which television has the advantage over these other things?
Emily Screen size is the obvious way – television was made for the size of screen it has, smartphones were not made to show action movies! Much more flexible schedules will be an improvement, but it seems that shopping and social contacts will stay with the smartphone.
Tutor Yes, I think you're right. You need always to look to the future and try to assess how things will develop. Good. Having said that, you need to move on to the newer social trends that we are seeing with television.
Emily Is one of them the idea that programmes might become shorter and shorter?
Denis Ah, yes, the average programme might be ten minutes or ...
Tutor ... or even less, just mini-programmes, say, four to five minutes long. Now, do you think you can get access to all the materials you need?
Denis The problem at the moment is the library.
Tutor Oh yes. What's happening there?
Denis There's a tremendous amount of noise because of the new extension they are building. It's quite impossible to work there.

Tutor They are stopping work for a week next week, I believe, and then all the sections will be open. There's a hold-up because some roof tiles have not arrived, so there will be peace for that week.

Emily But then after that the Media Studies section will be closed for a week, and all the noise and dirt will start up again.

Tutor Yes. But the Sociology section will be open and there's some good stuff there for you on this topic and it's further away from the noise.

Denis Yes, I don't think the Sociology section is affected at all and neither is the Journals section.

Tutor No, obviously they are rotating the closures and it was Sociology's turn to close for a week last term.

Denis I think we should make a complaint.

Tutor Yes, I think you should.

Denis I've had a word with the library staff – they are very sympathetic, but ...

Emily They are affected by these works just as we are.

Tutor If I were you I'd make a complaint directly to the Premises Committee. They only meet once a year but in fact I know they are having a meeting next Tuesday. You might like to make contact with them, but don't say I suggested this.

Emily Yes ... but the Students' Union might be better, since they are independent of the University.

Denis That's true, but I can't imagine that people haven't already approached them about this. Let's try the Premises Committee.

Tutor Good idea – why not?

Emily OK.

Tutor Now don't forget I need a copy of your dissertations by email and two copies in print, that is, on paper. If you give the reprographics office 24 hours' notice they'll make copies for you, and if you give them my details they'll send those copies directly to me. They won't send copies to you, so you'll need to take your own copy personally from them. Good. Any questions?

Questions 27–30

27 amateur video production/video material: Amateur video production is a major challenge, for television – and for the Internet itself.

28 Culture and Society
29 the University Theatre
30 4 July

Script

Emily One little thing was just that I wondered whether we should actually talk about the explosion of video material that is now being uploaded to the web, you know, to YouTube and also the social media websites.

Tutor I was rather hoping you hadn't overlooked that. Good point. Video material provides competition for television programmes, especially shorter ones of the kind we were talking about. Amateur video production is a major challenge, for television – and for the Internet itself. Anything else?

Denis Yes, I've got a question, I'm afraid. I'm not completely clear about the exact meaning of culture, as we're using it in this subject.

Tutor Well, Mrs Jones is giving a lecture on Culture and Society in the University Theatre. It's on Wednesday at 10 a.m. and you can learn all about it there, I am sure.

Denis Can you give us that again, please?

Tutor Yes. That's Culture and Society. It's in the University Theatre. And let me just check the time, yes, here it is, 10 a.m. on Wednesday. She'll be giving a very thorough discussion of the issues in defining what culture means.

Denis Right. That's good. The thing is, the reading list confused me a bit. One thing that occurred to me was that it might be broken down into subsections for future students.

Tutor Yes, that's a fair point. I'll bear that in mind. Now don't forget, you need to do the reading, and finish the assignment by the 4th July. Is that OK?

Emily Fine. Thank you very much.

Possible answers

a It is essential in order to gain good marks and to help prepare for work in later life. Assignments help prepare people for independent work in the real world.
b Visuals help to illustrate ideas. Because a picture says more than a thousand words, they are desirable but not essential, especially if one is a good speaker.
c A bibliography shows which materials, such as books and journals, have been looked at as sources. This is important because other people can then follow up the ideas elsewhere if they want to.

d Preparation is vital because it reduces the amount of work later on. What's more, in order to illustrate one's approach it is essential to have many ideas, facts and figures to hand. For example, it would be difficult to write about a historical event without knowing the background facts.
e At least one draft is strongly advisable, if not essential. In order to refine one's ideas, it is sometimes necessary to rewrite something three or four times.
f The key to preparing a good assignment is addressing the whole question, since it is easy to overlook an important part of the task.
g In order for a lecturer and fellow students to follow what is being said, it is important to speak clearly and naturally. Organization is also a prerequisite, if fellow students are to extract information. Because technology is in every part of the curriculum, it is essential for students to be completely computer literate.

5 B: ... maths is being taught by biologists ...

Script

Lecturer Now, I think nearly all of you have received confirmation of your school placements for next term and, as part of your activities, we'll be asking you to take responsibility for promoting a school visit to the Norchester Science Festival. Of course, the heads of science at your school will be aware of the festival and should have all the details of it, but all the heads of science at your schools will be looking to you to be the main organizers and motivators of a visit to the festival. They'll give you the documents you need. We hope that you will motivate pupils at your schools to take an interest in the festival. It runs for three days. There are day tickets and special three-day tickets, and schools have the extra option of a two-day ticket. We hope you will encourage your pupils to visit it on one or two days. But, most important of all, we hope you will use the festival to generate a lively interest in science that will last all year round and provide the school with a lasting benefit. This will, with luck, lead to improved examination results in science subjects. And let's not forget – we hope your pupils will have a lot of fun, too. Needless to say, your performance in achieving these aims will count towards your final exam grade at the end of the year. Now, let me just say a few words on why a science festival. Science is part of our everyday world in a way that is different now from before. Of course, we are used to having the benefit of scientific inventions: we are used to the aeroplane, the motorcar, the space rocket and so on. But now we live in a truly scientific age, which means one where inventions and improvements are matters of routine rather than occasional and unusual events. We have become a really scientific society. Yet, we find that we are failing to interest and enthuse the young in this. Fewer young people are choosing to study science at school after the age of sixteen, and even fewer at university. As a result, we have fewer teachers coming into schools to teach science. And many science teachers are not teaching their specialism. For example, I know of several cases where maths is being taught by biologists and chemistry is being taught by physicists. We urgently need another 3,000 science teachers in England, at least. That's why we look to you, the science teachers who are starting off your careers, to inject enthusiasm and wonder into the study of science. And we hope the Norchester Festival will help you to do this.

Lecturer Now, enough of the background, what about the festival? There are three main venues where the festival events take place. These are the Millennium Library, the town hall – not the town hall itself but the town hall Conference Centre – and the Norchester Theatre. When you're planning your visits, remember that many of the activities for younger pupils will be at the Millennium Library, and the secondary school pupils may find more to interest them in the Conference Centre. Now, just so that you have some immediate information, I'd like to mention a few of the events that are taking place this year. One event of special interest to people living in this area is called Waterworld. This is a clay model of the south-east of England and the presenters show you the effects of rising sea levels as a result of climate change. They ask the audience to select the rise in sea level, for example 20 or 40 or 60 centimetres, and the model shows the places that would be flooded as a result. Watch out for your town – does it sink or does it swim? Transport 2050 is about transport options for our towns in the future. A number of experts will introduce the topic, and then everyone at the event will have a chance to speak and give their views. Science in a suitcase is a comedy act by two scientists who do crazy experiments and sing songs and play the clown to large audiences every afternoon. I'm particularly looking forward to that one, which should be entertaining. Ropes and hangings is an interactive event, which will be of interest to young people in which, after experimenting with ropes and bricks, they build a real suspension bridge. That kind of hands-on activity is always really popular. And, appealing to a different audience, there is Paper and time, in which some experts will be showing us the techniques they use for the conservation of ancient books and manuscripts. This will obviously not be for everybody, but it should be interesting just to see how they do it. Now, let's move on to tickets and transport to the festival.

Speaker 2 It's often said that the arts offer something to society, and therefore it's in everyone's interests if they get funding from the state. That's not my view, because, if they were really that important, people would just be happy to pay higher ticket prices. Besides, if there was no funding, it would force them to think more commercially.

Speaker 3 There is an argument that scientists are too isolated: that they work in specialized departments and don't really think about the consequences of their ideas on the world outside. I really don't think that's

Script

Briony What have you been working on, Arthur?

Arthur I've been looking into the funding of the arts by the Arts Association.

Briony Oh, Mr Simpson gave you that topic, did he?

Arthur Yes, it's not too difficult. At least all the facts and figures are easy to find, or I think they will be. I've done a lot of useful stuff already. Simpson hasn't asked me to present my research for the past few seminars, so I think he might ask me this time.

Briony Well, what have you found out?

Arthur Well, it's big money at the Arts Association. £350 million from the government and £118 million from the Lottery. Let me see, I've got my notes here. Now, the Arts Association mission statement tells us that it exists to develop, sustain and promote the arts. So that's clear, but then we need to know exactly how it can do this. However, before we get to that, there are certain issues which the Association must take into account.

Briony What are those issues?

Arthur They are, first, access. This is the idea that the arts mustn't be just for the few.

Briony Not just Italian opera, but pop concerts, too?

Arthur Something like that. Other issues are education, cultural diversity, social regeneration and social inclusion. All these are different ways of saying that the arts are for everyone.

Briony All right, but what does it actually do?

Arthur It does what it wants, I think. The government doesn't interfere in its activities, but demands that it gets value for money for its funds.

Briony But there must be certain programmes that it carries out?

Arthur Oh yes. There is the touring programme, which is what it says, that is, a programme to support ...

Briony ... give money to ...

Arthur ... yes, that's right... to support touring companies, for example, dance companies, orchestras and so on. There is also the recovery programme.

Briony What on earth is that?

Arthur It's a financial programme to give extra money to organizations which are financially in a bad way or which might have financial difficulties in the future. Like it says, it's for their recovery.

Briony It all seems very complicated.

Arthur It is.

30 B: It's sort of about how art relates to how we think.

Script

Briony Did you get any information on the reading for the other half of our work?

Arthur Yes, I did. You mean the Art and Society module?

Briony Yes.

Arthur Yes. I met Simpson himself as we were waiting for a train at Norchester station so I managed to ask him.

Briony Any luck?

Arthur Yes. I've got the notes I took here. He told me, of course, to start with Greenberg, who covers contemporary art and the up-to-the-minute movements in America. It's about the modern movements really. As far as the economic impact of art is concerned, a basic text is the Parliamentary report on art and the UK economy. This gives lots of monetary facts and figures, but the figures are not very satisfactory as, of course, a lot of the information is confidential and can't be published. Art Now! Art Wow! by someone called Dennison sounds exciting and is about how art and artists are created, presented for buyers and sold in the US. It's about the whole trade in art as a phenomenon.

Briony Like a product, like washing powder ...

Arthur Yes ... That's the idea of the book, anyway. And there's another one here, oh yes, by someone called Hampton. It's a book called American Art which Simpson says is full of discussion on the relationship of art to the other aspects of culture, such as film, television, books and so on.

Briony Popular culture, I suppose.

Arthur Not just popular ... culture of all sorts, I imagine. Finally, for the spiritual and more abstract aspects of art, he recommends Art and the Mind of Modern Man by Frick. It's sort of about how art relates to how we think. He did have lots of other recommendations, but luckily his train arrived before he could move on to them. These seem enough to me.

Briony Yes. They're a good place to start. We will be busy.

Adrian Hello Brenda, how are you doing?

Brenda Fine. I've just come over to talk about this assignment on the function of zoos. Oh, hello, Charles.

Charles Hello, Brenda. That's good. I've just been in the library looking at some stuff. I think Adrian's been on the web.

Adrian Yes, I have.

Brenda Well, that's great. What have you found out about zoos?

Charles I've been looking into the history, both of zoos and of keeping animals generally.

Adrian I didn't think we had to do that.

Brenda Yes, it was one of the topics we had to research. We definitely need to cover it, even if only briefly, I think. After all, people have kept animals for recreation and pleasure for centuries. The ancient Egyptians kept collections of animals, and of course the Romans kept animals for recreation.

Adrian Ah, the Romans. That brings us to the general question of the treatment of animals, and the mistreatment of them ...

Charles Yes, but that's not our topic. We've been told to keep off that. Now, where were we?

Brenda Our assignment is concerned with the purposes of zoos in general, and in our modern era. We have to cover the history, but not in great depth. Our main focus is the scientific aspects of zoos, and the work they do for conservation, and so on.

Adrian We mustn't forget the question of who pays for them. Zoos are hugely expensive places to run nowadays. There are the costs of feeding the animals obviously, and security for the animals and the public, what happens if they escaped and so on. We have to ask what benefits we get from this.

Brenda Adrian, I don't think you'll find we have to do that kind of thing at all.

Adrian Oh. But I've been looking into all that, and the social benefits of zoos ...

Brenda What I mean is, that's not part of this assignment. All this financial and safety stuff is not necessary. We should stick to their purposes. Now, what have you found out, Charles?

Charles Well, I discovered that the World Association of Zoos and Aquariums was very helpful on this. I've got their website address here somewhere. I found out about the scientific research that zoos do. The other thing we should cover is the educational side of their work ...

Adrian The educational side is pretty obvious. I've got lots of stuff here about this and more references to websites and information. There's also the area of entertainment. What about that?

Charles He's got a point. I think we need to do some more research on that.

Brenda Fine. But it sounds like we've covered the history and science angles pretty well.

Charles I agree, let's leave those for now and plan some more study on the entertainment stuff.

Brenda And let's do some more work on the conservation element.

Adrian Oh yes. The Arabian oryx is a classic case.

Brenda The what?

Adrian The Arabian oryx. It's like a deer, but white. That is, it has a white body but brown legs, and long curved horns. It normally lives in the hot desert in the Arabian peninsula. Anyway, in the 70s the population declined and in 1972 the last wild oryx was shot and it became extinct in the wild. There were a few left in zoos in the United States, where there was a captive breeding programme. This was so successful that in 1982 a small population was reintroduced into the wild. Hunting of wild animals was made illegal and there are now about 300 in Oman.

Charles Although there was a big problem there, I believe. The population went up to about 450 in the 90s and then illegal hunting did take place. The population crashed again and the programmes had to be restarted. But that's been successful and there are now, I believe, as you say, several hundred in the wild. This is all available on the websites that Adrian has noted.

Adrian Mmm. There was a similar programme in Saudi Arabia and I think there are hundreds there now.

Brenda We can use that as a definite success story.

Adrian And what have you found out?

Charles Yeah, what have you come up with?

Brenda I'm going to the library now.

Charles Good.

Script

Lecturer Thousands of exotic plants and animals have been introduced into the British Isles over thousands of years. These newcomers compete with native species for resources, and can also cause major changes in the wildlife and in the habitats of our countryside. The problem is not just British of course, but global, and it has been going on for centuries. One good example of this I'd like to mention today is the European starling. The starling, to us in the UK, is a fairly ordinary little bird, about eight inches long. In flight it appears to be black or grey with tiny white spots. So it's a very ordinary-looking, almost dirty-looking bird. It nests in trees and buildings and can be found in the country and in towns. It travels in large flocks, leaving the nests in the morning and returning in the early evening. It feeds on insects and fruit. Its native range includes the British Isles and Finland, but it is also found in most of Europe and parts of Asia and Africa. In the British Isles and Finland, however, it has suffered a huge decline, and in these countries there is an effort to conserve the species. It is a different story in some of the places where it has been introduced. For example, the population in the USA is estimated at 170 million birds. Also, they are becoming a big problem in Australia and New Zealand. Starlings, as I have said, nest in trees and it has been found that they are more aggressive than the native species when they are looking for nesting places. They therefore compete with native species for nests and also they drive those species away from nests. So, this nest-building activity causes harm to native species, but also they are a nuisance to humans. They gather in large flocks of thousands of birds and feed together on commercial crops. This causes great financial damage to farmers. And they make a mess, both in the town and the countryside. There is also the problem that starlings may carry diseases which affect both humans and other animals, although this has not been really confirmed and we are waiting for more work to be done on this. The question arises – what are we to do about foreign species which not only do damage to native species, but interfere with human activity? We have three approaches in theory, but usually it is not a free choice between them. Usually, we have to do the best we can and that money will allow. The best approach of course is prevention, and many countries have passed legislation which attempts to limit or prevent the arrival of non-native species in their countries. In particular, there are many international regulations on how and where ships may pick up and deposit water, and this is a major contribution to preventing the accidental transport of fish and organisms by ship, since accidental transport by ship is a frequent cause of fish and other creatures going from place to place. Ports also have special areas where water can be deposited, and many of them have treatment facilities to kill any foreign species that may establish themselves in their waters. For fish and organisms that live in water, these international regulations are useful, but obviously not all species can be dealt with in this way. Sometimes, it is simply too late for prevention. Then we have to consider eradication or management. By management I mean that we have to decide how best to live with the new creatures and how to keep their numbers down. However, this becomes not only a scientific question. It can be a matter of choosing what population level of an invasive species we want to maintain. This choice involves costs: there is the cost of living with the species and there is the cost of managing the species over time (and species management is usually a long-term business without any foreseeable end). However, there is not just the economic aspect to this question. We can also consider the ethical point: how should we treat animals which we have, sometimes deliberately, introduced into the environment? Is it permissible just to exterminate a number of them convenient to ourselves? The most important decision has to be made in the political forum, no matter what considerations go into the making of that decision. These questions are relevant also to the approach of eradication, which is another option but which does not have an encouraging history. Many attempts have been made to eradicate introduced species ...

Advisor Certainly. We normally send out a copy of our leaflet 'Staying healthy at Glenfield'. I'm not sure why you haven't had it.

Student Well, could you answer a few questions for me? Firstly, I'm wondering about how I get a doctor when I arrive.

Advisor Well, you can register with the University Health Centre on North Campus.

Student And do I have to pay for that?

Advisor Not to register, but if you have to get medicines, there's a prescription charge of £6.50.

Student OK. Well, I'm not planning to get ill. That's only going to arise if I have any problems. So should I just go along when I arrive?

Advisor That's what we recommend for peace of mind. But it's not compulsory, and if you don't live inside the catchment area, you can't in fact register there. Where do you live?

Student Well, at the moment I'm staying at the backpackers' hostel in Hill Street, but I will be moving from there shortly. Somewhere nearer.

Advisor Well, there's a map at the centre which shows you the area that the university practice can accept people from – it's what we call the yellow zone. If you live outside that area, you have to find another medical centre to register with.

Student It sounds like I'll only qualify after I move.

Advisor I think you might be right. Then, in addition to the Health Centre, there's a free Counselling service for all students situated on the North Campus. You don't have to register. They also have drop-in sessions. I say it's free, but that's only for up to eight sessions. Beyond that they normally refer people elsewhere.

Student Sounds serious.

Advisor Well, it's not just for big problems. People go there for advice on housing, workload, whatever really. They can even arrange financial help.

Student Is it confidential?

Advisor Absolutely. Then again, a lot of students prefer to phone the Nightline service, which is run from an office on the Central Campus. They don't really encourage people to drop in.

Student I see.

Advisor So it's basically a free phone line. The number, if you want to make a note, is O – nine hundred – seven six two – five nine – one three. I'll say it again. O – nine hundred – seven six two – five nine – one three.

Student Fine. Well I hope I won't need any of these. What I will want is access to some gym facilities.

Advisor Right. Well, you'll find those on the South Campus in the Sports Centre. It's great, but it's not free. You have to present your student card and pay a fee of £22 to get a pass, but that will last you for the whole year.

Student I'm 24.

Advisor And finally, which course are you enrolled on?

Student Right, well that's a bit complicated, since I'm hoping to switch to Economics and History.

Advisor But at the moment ...

Student ... I'm down to do Economics and Sociology. It's a joint degree.

Advisor OK. I'll put that. Great, well ... I'll pop the information pack in the post and you should get it soon.

Speaker 1 I think it depends on what interests you and how committed you are. I suppose the best way, or at least the most effective way of getting healthy is through doing more exercise. I mean, diet's important, but you can be thin and unhealthy. So yeah, I'd say exercise is the key thing.

Speaker 2 It's difficult to say, I think.

There are so many reasons. The main cause seems to be smoking. I mean, it's the biggest cause of early deaths in most countries, I think. What else? Oh yeah, there's also salt. People eat more than they should do. But actually, people are getting more aware now of the dangers.

Speaker 3 I don't really know for sure, but my impression is that it can help. It's obvious that it helps if you think about it because people keep going back for acupuncture and homeopathy. So, it's mostly because of what people believe. That's what makes it effective.

Instructor Good morning everybody. I'd like to welcome you to Rose's Health Club which is part of the nationwide Rose Group of Health and Fitness centres. Today I hope to tell you everything about the Glenfield centre and the facilities it offers. First, have a look at the map of the centre I have put up here – there's a copy of it in your information packs. As you can see we have a range of facilities. We are here at the meeting point next to the reception desk. If you get lost, which is unlikely, make your way here. The main feature of the health club is, of course, the swimming pool. This is a 25-metre pool divided into three or four lanes. Access to the pool is normally through the changing rooms, for obvious reasons. To get to these, bear left as you come through reception and, as you follow the corridor, they are the two doors immediately to your right; first the female changing room, then the men's. If you follow the corridor right to the back of the building you'll find one of our most popular features – three state-of-the-art squash courts with a viewing gallery. We keep them in very good condition, so if you're keen on that sport, I'm sure you'll appreciate the quality. Right then, I'm sure what many of you are thinking of joining for is access to the gym facilities and activities like yoga. We've got lots of space for this, and these are all situated on the left-hand side of the main corridor, opposite the changing rooms and squash courts. At the far end, you'll find the fixed and free weights room – there are lots of fixed weights machines, and you'll also find exercise bikes and rowing machines. Next to that, directly opposite the changing rooms, there's access to our sports hall. This is where yoga classes, martial arts, circuit training and other classes take place. We even have badminton and table tennis sometimes. OK, moving on from the sports, there are two other things to point out. One is a small door next to reception, to the left as you come in. This takes you into the staff training room. This is important because you'll know where to find us in an emergency, and it doubles as a first aid room in those circumstances. Finally, last but not least, there is another corridor to the right as you come in, and that leads you to the café on one side and the viewing area for the swimming pool on the other.

Instructor Now we will go for a little tour in a moment, but first I'd like to tell you a little about the different kinds of club membership we have, so that you can be thinking about what you want as we go round. We first of all have the Anytime membership. Anytime is the complete go-as-you-please membership. This entitles you to full use of all the facilities during all opening hours. And we're open every day from 5 a.m. till midnight. This costs £850 per year, though there are some discounts which I will tell you about in a moment. Don't forget that the Rose Group is a nationwide group and this membership also entitles you to the full use of the group's other 250 clubs around the country. The Freetime membership is an off-peak membership. This entitles you to use of the facilities between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Also, you can use the facilities at any time at weekends. This costs £500. Note that you will still have access to a personal trainer under this membership scheme. Finally, a Standard membership costs £400 and is a weekday membership really, especially suitable for retired people who can come during the week. There is also a children's membership scheme. Children can join this scheme if they are between fifteen and eighteen years old. Please note that children under fifteen can't come to the club without an adult and they can't take sessions on the sun bed – not that young people usually want to use a sun bed anyway. The children's schemes are all half-price, that is 50 per cent for each child or young person in the scheme. People who live outside the area can have a discount of up to 50 per cent, but this has to be arranged specially with the general manager. If that is of interest to any of you, let me know and I will fix up an appointment for you. Now, let's go on our tour.

b Possible answer

It is perhaps a bit of both. Most individuals can only make small changes within society, which have an impact over time. Some individuals, like scientists and artists, can make huge changes through their work. Society also shapes individuals; otherwise it would be difficult for people to fit in.

c For example, they can help other people who are less able than themselves or less fortunate. They can also aim to make a contribution to society by working hard.

Lecturer In this lecture I want to introduce you to the life and work of a famous psychologist, a psychologist who had a big influence on the field of social psychology. Social psychology deals with group behaviour and the individual as a member of a group, and Solomon Asch made a most important contribution. Solomon Asch worked mostly in the USA, but he was born in 1907 in Poland, and he came to the US when he was thirteen. He went to an ordinary high school, and as he had an interest in human behaviour he decided to study psychology. He was quite disappointed with his first acquaintance with psychology – it seemed to be all about rats and mice and that didn't interest him at all. However, he persevered and eventually became a professor of psychology. Now, the experiment which made his name is called the line judgement task. Participants were asked to compare some simple lines: more precisely, they were given a card with three lines, then were asked to compare another single line and say whether it was longer or shorter than the lines on the card. What a participant didn't know was that in reality, all the other participants were effectively actors: that is, they were instructed to give a wrong judgement, and the purpose of the experiment was to see how the single subject would react.

Lecturer The subject would hear the others saying things about the length of the line which were clearly false. Most subjects answered correctly in spite of the incorrect judgements of the others, but a proportion – 32 per cent – conformed to the majority view, the incorrect view. This proportion was much, much higher than anticipated. Before the experiments they'd thought fifteen per cent or lower might do this. To give you a bit more detail, I have an illustration up here on the board. A group of six or seven people were given a card with three lines on it. There is a short vertical line, on the right of which is a longer line and on the right of that there is another still longer line. However, it's clear that the longest line is the right-hand one, the second longest the middle one, and the shortest is the one on the left. The participants were given a second card with just one line on it. I should add that in these experiments people became very distressed. They found it very hard to deal with a situation where people were telling them things which were against the evidence of their own eyes. One woman became extremely agitated, running about measuring and looking and checking and shouting in a kind of massive anxiety. Now, experiments which occurred some time later found that other factors can influence the result. For example, when there were more so-called participants, there was even more conformity. On the other hand, when people were able to respond in secrecy, by writing the result down for instance, they made fewer incorrect judgements about the lines. Subjects gave various explanations for why they made the decisions they did. Although they weren't put under pressure by the experimenter, many felt that they would somehow spoil the experiment and upset the person running it if they didn't agree, no matter how stupid they felt. More simply, in other cases they said they just wanted to not show themselves in a bad light. Whatever the reason, Asch's experiment has had a long history and ...

Mike Well, Fiona, we certainly have a lot of work to do this weekend. I wish now I hadn't spent so much time on my other assignment.

Fiona Don't say that! You did really well: 80 per cent.

Mike Yes, but this is different. It's not hard really, it's just all a bit of a rush. We had loads of time to get the other one right, but this one is all a bit pressured. That's what makes me anxious, despite the preparation we've done.

Fiona You shouldn't worry. What could go wrong? Come on, let's look through what we can do to make sure it's OK.

Mike Mmm, well, the main difficulty that's bothering me is about defining the terms of reference. It's supposed to be about approaches to social welfare, right?

Fiona Yes, but we're not expected to give a survey of what that means. That's not the point. We're supposed to be comparing the way welfare is approached in collectivist societies and what you might call capitalist societies.

Mike So we can concentrate on just that contrast?

Fiona Yes.

Mike The other thing that bothers me is that I'm not really committed to either view.

Fiona Well, I have strong opinions of my own, but that's not supposed to colour my judgement.

Mike How do you mean?

Fiona Well, what you write for this is supposed to be unbiased. It specifically says that you shouldn't give a personal view.

Mike But Professor Green has a personal view.

Fiona Yes, but that doesn't mean that we have to agree with him, and I don't think we'll do any better if we do.

Mike Oh. And how long does it have to be?

Fiona The maximum is 4,000 words.

Mike What?

Fiona But that's the maximum. We'll probably end up with about three, but 2,000 is the minimum. Shouldn't be a problem.

Mike Mm. OK.

Mike Now, where can we get some information on all this?

Fiona Well, we could ask Olive over there. Olive, you did this assignment last year, didn't you?

Olive Not this one exactly, but something similar. The most important thing is to get Professor Green's lectures on the Welfare State.

Mike Is he good?

Olive Oh, very good. Didn't you know he was lecturing?

Fiona No, no idea.

Olive Well, he is. He's at the Becket Building on Tuesdays. I think he's starting this week, so you'll be able to get the series of six. He deals with the underlying philosophy as well as the economics of it all. It's at 10 a.m. – I'd go myself except that I have too much to do.

Mike And what about reading? I've got the reading list here. As usual, it has far more titles and references than we can possibly read in the time.

Fiona I haven't even got a reading list. Where did you get that from, Mike?

Mike I got it at the welcome lecture.

Fiona Oh. I wish I'd gone to that now.

Olive What you need above all is his own book, called Welfare Economics. All the department know it and follow his approach.

Mike Oh, right, good idea. Perhaps we don't need to go to the lecture if we have his book?

Olive No, I really do advise you to go to his lectures as well.

Fiona OK, what was the full title of his book?

Olive If I remember rightly, it's called simply Welfare Economics, by Mike Green.

Mike Oh, I've got it. Welfare Economics, Glenfield University Press, 2012.

Fiona Great. Let me just write that down.

Mike Anything else you recommend?

Olive There's Edward Jones's book, erm, Growing Old in Britain. That's essential reading but you have to be careful, because it's a popular book by a journalist.

Fiona Well, if it's popular, maybe we'll like it. Who publishes that?

Mike Er. Oh. That's published by Polybus Publications in 2013.

Fiona Well, that's very useful. I think it's Professor Green for us next.

Mike Right.
